

Disposal Facility at SRS. The disposal of this low-activity salt stream is the subject of this draft waste determination.

DOE is separating the salt waste to segregate the low-activity fraction using a two-phase, three-part process. The first phase will involve two parts to treat the lower activity salt waste: (1) Beginning in 2005, DOE will process a minimal amount of the lowest-activity salt waste through a process involving deliquification, dissolution, and adjustment (DDA) of the waste; and (2) beginning in approximately 2007, DOE will process a minimal amount of additional salt waste with slightly higher activity levels using an Actinide Removal Process and a Modular Caustic Side Solvent Extraction Unit, along with deliquification and dissolution of the saltcake. The second, and longer-term phase, which is scheduled to begin in approximately 2009, involves the separation and processing of the remaining (and by far the majority) of the salt waste using a Salt Waste Processing Facility (SWPF), augmented as necessary by the Actinide Removal Process. This second phase will begin as soon as the Salt Waste Processing Facility is constructed, permitted by the State of South Carolina, and operational.

DOE believes that this two-phase, three-part approach to processing and disposing of the salt waste at SRS will enable it to complete cleanup and closure of the tanks years earlier and maximize reduction of the potential risks that the tank wastes pose to the environment, the public, and SRS workers. Taken together, the various technologies that will be used are expected to result in the removal and vitrification through the Defense Waste Processing Facility of approximately 98% to 99% of the total radioactivity currently contained in the salt waste, while minimizing the time that waste will be stored in the underground tanks, some of which have a known history of leaks.

Final Determination: DOE will issue a final salt-waste determination following the completion of consultation with the NRC, and consideration of any public comments.

Issued in Washington, DC, on March 28, 2005.
