Proposed Information Collection Request Submitted for Public Comment and Recommendations; Labor Condition Application for Nonimmigrant Workers

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: The Department of Labor, as part of its continuing effort to reduce paperwork and respondent burden, conducts a preclearance consultation program to provide the general public and Federal agencies with an opportunity to comment on proposed and/or continuing collections of information in accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (PRA95) (44 U.S.C. 3506(c)(A)). SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The Immigration and Naturalization Act (INA) requires that before any foreign worker may be admitted or otherwise provided status as an H-1B, H-1B1, or E-3 nonimmigrant the prospective employer must have filed with the Department of Labor (Department) a Labor Condition Application (LCA). Employers must state on the LCA that they will offer prevailing wages and working conditions, that there is not a strike or lockout in the course of a labor dispute in the occupational classification at the place of employment, and that they have provided notice of filing in conspicuous locations at the place of employment. Further, the employer must make certain documentation available for public examination. The Department's review of each LCA filed is limited by law solely to a review for completeness or "obvious inaccuracies." Complaints may be filed with the Department alleging a violation of the LCA process. If reasonable cause is found to believe a violation has been committed, the Department will conduct an investigation and, if appropriate, assess penalties. The INA places a limit on the number of foreign workers who can be admitted to the United States on H-1B, H-1B1, or E-3 visas. The INA generally limits H-1B workers to a maximum of a six-year duration of stay under H-1B status, although extensions are permitted for certain foreign workers on whose behalf a labor certification or employment-based immigrant petition has been pending for 365 days or more. The INA requires that the Department make available for public examination in Washington, DC, a list of employers which have filed LCAs.
