The endangered nightjar is an endemic bird of Puerto Rico belonging to the family Caprimulgidae. This insectivorous and nocturnal bird nests from late February through early July, but the peak period is from April to June. The nightjar does not construct a nest, but rather the eggs are laid directly on leaf litter under vegetation having a canopy 4 to 6 m (13 to 20 feet) in height. The species is presently found in the dry limestone forests of the southwestern coast of Puerto Rico, and in the lower cordillera forest in Susúa area. The species' current distribution includes the Peñones de Melones area in Cabo Rojo, the Sierra Bermeja forested hills in Cabo Rojo-Lajas area, the Guánica—Yauco area including the Guánica Commonwealth Forest, the Guayanilla—Peñuelas hills, Ponce, and Susúa-Maricao area including the Susúa Commonwealth Forest. Approximately 712 singing male nightjars have been estimated in 9,839 ha (24,598 acres) in Susúa, Guánica and Guayanilla. The species is threatened by habitat modification and destruction for urban, industrial, and tourism development, and by predation by exotic species such as mongoose (Herpestes auropunctatus) and cats (Felis catus).

The Applicant conducted an intensive study of the Puerto Rican nightjar during the 2003 and 2004 breeding seasons and recorded approximately 33 singing male nightjars in 2003, and approximately 42 singing male nightjars in 2004, both studies conducted on 250 hectares (625 acres) of dry forest.

The brown pelican is found along North American coasts from California through Mexico, around the Gulf of Mexico, and through North Carolina, as well as the West Indies, many Caribbean islands, and Guyana and Venezuela in South America. It is considered endangered throughout its range, except on the U.S. Atlantic coast and the Gulf coast of Florida and Alabama.

Brown pelicans nest in colonies, mostly on small coastal islands. In Puerto Rico, brown pelicans have nested in Añasco, Cayo Frío (Lajas), Cayo Don Luis (Guánica), Cayo Conejo (Vieques), Montalva Bay (Guánica-Parguera), Aguadilla, Guanajibo (Mayagüez), Cayo Ratones (Cabo Rojo), Cayos Fríos (Ponce), and Cayo Morrillito (Ponce). In the U.S. Virgin Islands, brown pelicans
