

I. Background

FDA is announcing the availability of a draft guidance for industry entitled "Process Validation: General Principles and Practices." This guidance outlines the general principles and approaches that FDA considers to be appropriate elements of process validation for the manufacture of human and animal drug and biological products, including active pharmaceutical ingredients (API or drug substance). This guidance incorporates principles and approaches that all manufacturers can use in validating a manufacturing process.

In the Federal Register of May 11, 1987 (52 FR 17638), FDA issued a notice announcing the availability of a guidance entitled "Guideline on General Principles of Process Validation" (the 1987 guidance). Since then, we have obtained additional experience through our regulatory oversight that allows us to update our recommendations to industry on this topic. The draft guidance conveys FDA's current thinking on process validation and is consistent with basic principles first introduced in the 1987 guidance. The draft guidance also provides recommendations that reflect some of the goals of FDA's initiative entitled "Pharmaceutical CGMPs for the 21st Century—A Risk-Based Approach," particularly with regard to the use of technological advances in pharmaceutical manufacturing, as well as implementation of modern risk management and quality system tools and concepts. When finalized, this guidance will replace the 1987 guidance.

FDA's current good manufacturing practice (CGMP) regulations for validating pharmaceutical (drug) manufacturing require that drug products be produced with a high degree of assurance that they meet all the attributes they are intended to possess (21 CFR 211.100(a) and 211.110(a)). Effective process validation contributes significantly to the assurance of drug quality. FDA has the authority and responsibility to inspect and evaluate process validation performed by manufacturers.

This guidance aligns process validation activities with the product lifecycle concept and with existing FDA guidance, including International Conference on Harmonisation (ICH) guidance documents, "Q8 Pharmaceutical Development," "Q9 Quality Risk Management," and when it is finalized, "Q10 Pharmaceutical Quality System" (a notice of availability for the May 2007 ICH Q10 draft guidance published in the Federal Register on July 13, 2007 (72 FR 38604)) (the guidances are available on the Internet at <http://www.fda.gov/cder/guidance/index.htm>). The lifecycle concept links product and process development, qualification of the commercial manufacturing process, and maintenance of the process in a state of control during routine commercial production. This guidance promotes modern manufacturing principles, process improvement innovation, and sound science.

This draft guidance is being issued consistent with FDA's good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The draft guidance, when finalized, will represent the agency's current thinking on the general principles and practices of process validation. It does not create or confer any rights for or on any person and does not operate to bind FDA or the public. An alternative approach may be used if such approach satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.

II. Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995

This draft guidance contains information collection provisions that are subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3501–3520). The collection of information requested in the draft guidance is covered under FDA regulations at 21 CFR part 211, and is approved under OMB Control Number 0910–0139.
