SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Order To Show Cause

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has tentatively determined that it will extend through October 30, 2010, the FAA's January 15, 2008 order limiting scheduled operations at John F. Kennedy International Airport (JFK), as amended (January 2008 order).<sup>1</sup> This order to show cause invites air carriers and other interested persons to submit comments in Docket FAA-2007-29320 on this proposal to extend the duration of the January 2008 order.<sup>2</sup>

The January 2008 order followed a period during which JFK operated without any regulatory constraint on the number of aircraft operations, and JFK experienced significant congestion-related delay. As a result of these delays, the FAA invited all scheduled air carriers to a scheduling reduction meeting to discuss overscheduling at the airport, voluntary schedule reductions, and retiming flights to less congested periods.<sup>3</sup> The scheduling reduction meeting and subsequent negotiations led the FAA to issue the January 2008 order, which limited the number of scheduled operations conducted by U.S. and Canadian air carriers at JFK and recognized the approved operations of other foreign air carriers during peak operating hours. The order took effect March 30, 2008, and in the absence of an extension, it will expire on October 24, 2009.

The FAA established the order's October 2009 expiration date to permit time to promulgate a final rule that would control congestion at JFK, and the FAA adopted a final rule to manage congestion at JFK that would have continued operational limits at the airport beyond October 2009. 73 FR 60544 (Oct. 10, 2008). However, the rule was stayed by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit prior to the rule's December 9, 2008 effective date. The FAA is currently soliciting comments on a proposal to rescind the final rule. 74 FR 22714 (May 14, 2009). As a result of the FAA's reconsideration of the rule, the court is holding in abeyance the briefing schedule in the rule's associated litigation.

<sup>2</sup> The FAA is separately accepting comments on a proposal to extend the May 15, 2008, order limiting scheduled operations at Newark Liberty International Airport (Newark). The public may file or review documents related to the Newark order in Docket FAA-2008-0221.

In light of the events that have transpired since the January 2008 order took effect, it is now unlikely that the FAA will have an effective final rule on the January 2008 order's original expiration date. In the absence of the FAA's extension of the order, the FAA anticipates a return of the congestion-related delays that precipitated the voluntary schedule reductions and adjustments reflected in the January 2008 order. The hourly capacity at JFK has not increased significantly since the order took effect last spring. Because the demand for operations at New York-area airports remains high, the FAA has determined that an extension of the January 2008 order appears to be appropriate while the FAA identifies the appropriate long-term solution to congestion at JFK.

Order to Show Cause: To prevent a recurrence of overscheduling at JFK during the interim between the expiration of the January 2008 order on October 24, 2009, and the effective date of a replacement rule, the FAA tentatively intends to extend the January 2008 order. The limit on scheduled operations that is embodied in the order reflects the FAA's agreements with U.S. and foreign air carriers. As a result, maintaining the order for an additional, finite period constitutes a reasonable approach to preventing unacceptable congestion and delays at JFK until a long-term measure is implemented. The January 2008 order, as extended, would expire on October 30, 2010.

Accordingly, the FAA directs all interested persons to show cause why the FAA should not make final its tentative findings and tentative decision to extend the January 2008 order through October 30, 2010, by filing their written views in Docket FAA-2007-29320. The FAA does not intend this request for the views of interested persons to address any issues related to the existing final rule or any future congestion management rule. Therefore, any submission to the current docket should be limited to the proposed extension of the January 2008 order.

Issued in Washington, DC, on May 29, 2009.

Order To Show Cause

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has tentatively determined that it will extend through October 30, 2010, the FAA's May 15, 2008 order limiting scheduled operations at Newark Liberty International Airport (EWR) (May 2008 order).<sup>1</sup> This order to show cause invites air carriers and other interested persons to submit comments in Docket FAA-2008-0221 on this proposal to extend the duration of the May 2008 order.<sup>2</sup>

The May 2008 order followed a period of elevated, congestion-related delays at the New York area's three commercial airports, culminating in the FAA's issuance of an order limiting scheduled operations at JFK in January 2008. To prevent new flights from moving to EWR, which was already prone to delays and scheduled near or above its average hourly runway capacity during many peak hours, the FAA engaged the U.S. and foreign air carriers serving EWR to reduce the number of scheduled operations during peak hours and to move operations to less congested hours. The May 2008 order captured the agreed upon schedules and limited the number of scheduled operations conducted by U.S. and foreign air
