

of medical and patient record confidentiality. As such, the physician overseeing the PAD program should conduct a thorough medical documentation review prior to the "process" evaluation that will be conducted by or for individuals with responsibility for facility management. The physician should be responsible for assuring that privileged or confidential patient information is shielded.

An essential post-event consideration is the psychological effect on LRRs and others. It is not at all uncommon for LRRs, witnesses and co-workers to have psychological or stress reactions to an event. These people may have both emotional and physical reactions that need to be addressed, but for which there is a reluctance to come forward to ask for help. Facility leadership has a positive obligation to reach out and offer help to these individuals, affirming that such responses are normal and to a large extent to be expected. Post-event support is especially important in cases where a rescue is unsuccessful. Post-event support should be available and offered promptly after an event, and the invitation to seek assistance should remain open. This type of psychological care is best provided by trained professionals with expertise in the area of critical incident stress management. Provision of these psychological services should be addressed in the PAD program design and protocols.

Proposed Project: Evaluate the Advancing Systems Improvements to Support Targets for Healthy People 2010 (ASIST2010) Program—OMB No. 0990–NEW—Office on Women's Health.

Abstract: The Office on Women's Health is collecting data from 13 funded grantees and clients participating in ASIST2010, a three-year, cooperative agreement program. ASIST2010 uses a public health systems approach to improve performance on two or more of seven Healthy People 2010 (HP 2010) objectives that target women and/or men in six focus areas—cancer, diabetes, heart disease and stroke, access to quality health services, educational and community-based programs, nutrition and overweight, and physical activity and fitness. The goals of the ASIST2010 program are to: (1) Provide additional support to existing public health systems/collaborative partnerships to enable them to add a gender focus to HP 2010 objectives that track the health status of women and/or men, to help improve gender outcome in the targeted population and/or geographic area; (2) improve surveillance/information systems that allow tracking of program progress on HP 2010 objectives at the grantee level; and (3) develop and implement a plan to sustain the program after OWH funding ends. The sites participating in the ASIST2010 program represent four academic medical centers, three community-based organizations, two hospitals, two state health departments, one county health department, and one foundation.
