Proposed Project

Prevention Research Centers Program National Evaluation Reporting System—Revision—National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (NCCDPHP), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Background and Brief Description

The Prevention Research Centers (PRC) Program was established by Congress through the Health Promotion and Disease Amendments of 1984. CDC manages the PRC program and currently provides funding to PRC grantees that are housed within schools of public health, medicine or osteopathy. Awards are made for five years and may be renewed through a competitive application process. PRCs conduct outcomes-oriented health promotion and disease prevention research on a broad range of topics using a multi-disciplinary and community-based approach. Research projects involve State and local health departments, health care providers, universities, community partners, and other organizations. PRCs collaborate with external partners to assess community health priorities; identify research priorities; set research agendas; conduct research projects and related activities such as training and technical assistance; and disseminate research results to public health practitioners, researchers, and the general public. Each PRC receives an approximately equal amount of funding from CDC to establish its core capacity and support a core research project as well as training and evaluation activities. Research foci reflect each PRC's area of expertise and the needs of the community. Health disparities and goals outlined in Healthy People 2010 are a particular emphasis for most PRC core research.

CDC is currently approved to collect progress and performance information from PRCs through the PRC Information System (IS), a Web-based application (OMB #0920-0650, exp. 8/31/2010). The IS was developed to organize programmatic information through work plans and progress reports and to assist in tracking progress toward and achievement of the PRC performance indicators.
