See 47 CFR 0.459 of the Commission's rules.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) requires telecommunications carriers and other providers of telecommunications to contribute to the universal service fund and other funds. Contribution revenue data, as well as other information, are reported by carriers on FCC Form 499-A (annual) and 499-Q (quarterly). Accompanying these forms are instructions on how to report revenue. Although there are no changes to the collection requirements or on the forms, the total hourly burden has been adjusted. The Commission is reporting a 8,581 hourly increase in burden. This is due to updated information from the Universal Service Administrative Company (USAC), the administrator of the universal service fund, based on actual participation in the program.

Specifically, for the FCC Form 499-A, the Commission has increased the number of respondents from 5,625 to 5,800 based on the actual number of contributing entities for fiscal year 2009. For the FCC Form 499-Q, the number of respondents increased from 2,525 to 3,600 based on the actual number of service providers filing FCC Form 499-Q in 2009. Therefore, the total annual burden increased from 273,129 to 281,710 hours. And the frequency of response remained the same for both forms.

The Commission uses the information to evaluate individual contributor's contributions to the universal service mechanisms, pursuant to section 254 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.
