

tractor-trailer. The primary findings are the following:

- Data from Florida and North Carolina showed decreases in fatalities and serious injuries to passenger vehicle occupants when rear-ending a tractor-trailer subsequent to the implementation of Safety Standards 223 and 224. However, the observed decreases are not statistically significant at the 0.05 level, possibly due to the small sample sizes of the data.

- Using supplemental data collection from North Carolina, it is shown that passenger vehicle passenger compartment intrusion is more apt to occur when the corner of the trailer is impacted, rather than the center of the trailer. This result is statistically significant at the 0.01 level.

- It is not possible to establish a nationwide downward trend in fatalities when a passenger vehicle rear-ends a tractor-trailer—neither in terms of total number of fatalities, percentage of fatalities in rear impacts relative to other passenger vehicle fatalities involved in tractor-trailer accidents, nor number of fatal crashes per 1,000 total crashes. The Fatality Accident Reporting System does not list the model year of the trailer.

In April 2009, NHTSA issued An In-Service Analysis of Maintenance and Repair Expenses for the Anti-Lock Brake System and Underride Guard for Tractors and Trailers (74 FR 18803).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Safety Standard 213 (49 CFR 571.213) establishes standards for child restraint systems, including booster seats, manufactured for use in motor vehicles as well as aircraft. This report uses CDS data from 1998-2008 and 17 combined years of State data from Kansas, Washington and Nebraska to estimate the effects of early graduation from child restraint seats to booster seats and of early graduation from booster seats to lap and shoulder belts. Estimates are computed by double-pair comparison, a method uniquely suited to address the confounding variables which may bias results and are difficult or impossible to account for with other statistical methods.

The principal findings are that among 3-4-year-olds there is evidence of increased risk of injury when restrained in booster seats rather than the recommended child restraint seats. This effect may be more pronounced in the 3-year-olds. Among 4-8-year-olds there is strong evidence of increased risk of injury when restrained by lap and shoulder belts rather than the recommended booster seats. The magnitude of this effect is estimated at a 14% increase in risk of any type of injury, but may vary depending on data source and injury severity.
