II. Background

The United States citizenship requirements for ownership of vessels eligible to engage in the coastwise or fisheries trades are established by 46 U.S.C. 50501. Among other things, they require that 75% of the ownership interest in qualified vessel-owning entities, as evidenced by title and voting power, must be vested in United States citizens. In addition, in accordance with 46 CFR 67.31(d), where title to a vessel is held by an entity comprised, in whole or in part, of other entities, each entity contributing to the stock or equity interest qualifications of the entity holding title must be a citizen eligible to document vessels in its own right with a coastwise or fisheries trade endorsement.² Thus, for publicly traded companies, as with other entities holding title to coastwise or fisheries eligible vessels, each entity whose ownership interest in the stock or equity of that company contributes to the 75% ownership requirement for that company must itself be eligible to document vessels in its own right with a coastwise or fisheries trade endorsement. Moreover, for those entities to be so eligible themselves, they must also satisfy the requirements of 46 U.S.C. 50501 and 46 CFR 67.31(d), as would, consequently, any entities whose stock or equity ownership contributes in turn to their 75% United States citizen ownership requirement.

In addition to the stock or equity ownership interest requirement discussed above, there are other requirements that entities must satisfy in order to be qualified, in their own right, to document vessels, including to document vessels with coastwise or fisheries trade endorsements. As set forth at 46 CFR 67.39(a), in the case of entities that are corporations, any such entity (1) must be incorporated under the laws of the United States or of a state; (2) its chief executive officer, by whatever title, must be a citizen of the United States; (3) the chairman of its board of directors must be a United States citizen; and (4) no more of its directors than a minority of the number necessary to constitute a quorum may be non-citizens of the United States.

The process for determining the citizenship of applicants for documentation of vessels, including for documentation with coastwise or fisheries trade endorsements, relies on self-certification. Because of that, it has long been the position of the Coast Guard that, when evidence of possible non-compliance is found, the burden is upon the applicant, or recipient of such privilege, to establish its qualifications. A clear statement of that obligation, offered in the context of publicly traded companies, was published at 58 FR 60256 (November 15, 1993) where it was stated at page 60259 as follows:

The documentation laws are meant to be restrictive and are intended to limit the persons who are eligible to document vessels under U.S. law and acquire trading privileges. Corporations can make proof of citizenship less difficult, for instance by restricting sale of their stock to U.S. citizens, or using a transfer agent to administer a dual stock certificate system. Of course, any U.S. corporation that is unwilling to subject itself to the possibility of having to prove that it qualifies for coastwise or fisheries privileges can choose not to seek them. The Coast Guard will not be bound by any presumptions or inferences in making eligibility determinations for documentation purposes.

Against the background of this statement by the Coast Guard of the burden upon corporations to be able to prove their qualifications, as a necessary requirement of a self-certifying system for determining that U.S. citizenship standards have been met, the Coast Guard recently completed an investigation of a publicly-traded company owning vessels documented with coastwise endorsements and found that its U.S. citizenship could not be established. The report of that investigation, dated January 12, 2011, contains the Coast Guard's findings, opinions and recommendations with respect to this issue, as pertinent to the company investigated, and can be found at <http://www.uscg.mil/hq/cg5/nvdc/nvdcreport.asp> or go to the National Vessel Documentation Center home page at <http://www.uscg.mil/hq/cg5/nvdc/>, click on "Latest News" on the left side of the page, then click on "Trico Investigation" under the drop-down menu.

III. Information Requested

This notice solicits information, for the benefit of the Coast Guard but also for the mutual benefit of industry, as to the mechanisms that publicly traded companies have employed, including but not limited to those mentioned in the quoted language above, to assure compliance with United States citizenship requirements. We are also requesting information on the manner in which those mechanisms function to provide that assurance and, when called upon to do so, to offer proof of compliance. The Coast Guard will not retaliate against commenters that question or complain about citizenship requirements or any policy or action of the Coast Guard.

This document is issued under authority of 5 U.S.C. 552(a) and 33 CFR 1.05-1.

Dated: October 25, 2011.

Timothy V. Skuby,

Director, National Vessel Documentation Center, U.S. Coast Guard.
