

also as a result of dermal, hand-to-mouth, or other exposure;

- Consider the level at which there is a reasonable certainty of no harm to children, pregnant women, or other susceptible individuals and their offspring, considering the best available science, and using sufficient safety factors to account for uncertainties regarding exposure and susceptibility of children, pregnant women, and other potentially susceptible individuals; and
- Consider possible similar health effects of phthalate alternatives used in children's toys and child care articles.

The CPSIA contemplates completion of the CHAP's examination within 18 months of the panel's appointment on April 14, 2010. The CHAP has an additional 6 months to complete its final report to the Commission. The CHAP must review prior work on phthalates by the Commission, but it is not to be considered determinative because the CHAP's examination must be conducted de novo.

The CHAP must make recommendations to the Commission regarding any phthalates (or combinations of phthalates), in addition to those identified in section 108 of the CPSIA, or phthalate alternatives that the panel determines should be prohibited from use in children's toys or child care articles, or otherwise restricted. The CHAP members were selected by the Commission from scientists nominated by the National Academy of Sciences. See 15 U.S.C. 2077, 2030(b).

The CHAP met previously in April, July, and December 2010, and in March, July, and November 2011, at the CPSC's offices in Bethesda, MD, and by teleconference in November 2010, September 2011, and December 2011. The CHAP heard testimony from interested parties at the July 2010, and November 2011 meetings. The February 2012 teleconference and public meeting will include discussion of the CHAP's progress in preparing a final report. There will not be any opportunity for public comment during the February 2012 teleconference or the public meeting.

Dated: January 11, 2012.

Secretary, Consumer Product Safety Commission.
