

antidumping treatment as its predecessor.⁷

In its submission, Hebei has provided sufficient evidence for us to preliminarily determine that it is the successor-in-interest to Jikai. Hebei states that its management, production facilities, and customer/supplier relationships have not changed as a result of the name change. Hebei provided documents showing that Husqvarna Holding AB, which had previously owned most of Jikai's shares, acquired the remaining shares to become Jikai's sole owner and changed of the company name from Jikai to Hebei. Further, Hebei provided internal documents evidencing that: Jikai's top 10 products remained as Hebei's top 10 products, Jikai's top 10 input suppliers remained as Hebei's top 10 input suppliers providing the same inputs, and Jikai's top 10 customers remained as Hebei's top 10 customers. Hebei also provided a list of members of the management team and supporting documentation indicating that Jikai's managers hold the same position in Hebei and documentation showing only small, insignificant changes to the members of the board of directors.

Based on record evidence, we preliminarily determine that Hebei is the successor-in-interest to Jikai because the name change resulted in no significant changes to management, production facilities, supplier relationships, and customers. As a result, we preliminarily determine that Hebei operates as the same business entity as Jikai. Thus, we preliminarily determine that Hebei should receive the same antidumping duty cash deposit rate with respect to the subject merchandise as Jikai, its predecessor company.

Because cash deposits are only estimates of the amount of antidumping duties that will be due, changes in cash deposit rates are not made retroactive and, therefore, no change will be made to Hebei's cash deposit rate as a result of these preliminary results. If Hebei believes that the deposits paid exceed the actual amount of dumping, it is entitled to request an administrative review during the anniversary month of the publication of the order of those entries, i.e., November, to determine the proper assessment rate and receive a refund of any excess deposits.⁸ As a result, if these preliminary results are adopted in our final results of this changed circumstances review, we will instruct CBP to suspend shipments of subject merchandise made by Hebei at Jikai's cash deposit rate effective on the publication date of our final results.
