

diversity of skills and perspectives to come up with ideas that advance both goals simultaneously so that 25 years from now the present tension between the two is replaced with a relationship of positive and mutual reinforcement. Welcome to the team!

Profile 3—Grants Management

Ty oversees an office that awards and administers grants to community-based social service organizations. As part of an ongoing effort to maximize the agency’s return on investment, Ty’s office is awarding more grants to organizations that promise innovative approaches to service delivery. Many of those organizations are first-time recipients of government grants. Although Ty and his staff are encouraged by early signs of success, they recognize the need for careful oversight and evaluation. They also recognize that new models of service delivery may call for changes in the way that the office collects and analyzes program data. Responding to these challenges is critical to ensuring that management of the grant-making process does not stand in the way of grantee-led program innovation.

Profile 4—Law Enforcement

Sami was recently hired by her city’s chief of police to review the organization’s case prioritization approach. She is faced with the dilemma of meeting higher expectations for successful criminal prosecution/ crime reduction/agility in response to emerging threats without any increase in enforcement and civilian staff. She is expected to do so in a more transparent manner and to further complicate things, the budget is shrinking. Sami is reaching out to other law enforcement agencies to learn what they are doing that she may be able to replicate but she also believes that new, innovative approaches are necessary to meet expectations in the long run. She is actually more concerned about internal resistance to trying new approaches than she is about anything else.
