Privacy Act of 1974; System of Records

AGENCY: Postal Service™.

ACTION: Notice of modification to existing systems of records.

SUMMARY: The United States Postal Service® is proposing to modify a Customer Privacy Act System of Records to enable the Postal Service to collect additional information from customers who register with usps.com online. I. Background

To date, approximately 20 million customers (individuals and corporate entities) conduct transactions with the Postal Service online through usps.com. To create an account on usps.com, users must register through the Customer Registration application. This application requires each registrant to submit personal, user-specific information such as his or her name, physical address, email address, and phone number, to enable the registrant to make purchases for postal products and services online.

Additional information is collected from the customer automatically when the customer registers through usps.com, such as the registrant's Internet Protocol (IP) address, domain name, operating system versions, browser version, date and time of connection, and geographic location. This information is used to support the Customer Registration application and provide a secure environment for customer transactions.

The Customer Registration application is a target for various types of fraudulent activity, such as the creation of fraudulent accounts, identity theft, and unauthorized account access. Consistent with the official USPS Privacy Policy, available at www.usps.com/privacypolicy, the Postal Service has implemented policies and programs that attempt to identify and mitigate such fraudulent activities, including the collection and analysis of Internet Protocol (IP) addresses from users of usps.com for the purposes of identifying potential fraudulent activities. While these policies and programs have had success, the Postal Service is seeking to enhance its ability to identify and mitigate fraud through the collection of additional types of customer information during the Customer Registration process. Accordingly, the Postal Service is seeking to amend System of Records 810.100, www.usps.com Registration, to authorize such collection.

The Postal Service is also proposing to maintain information from business
