SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

We are announcing the availability of a guidance for industry entitled "Guidance for Industry: Safety of Nanomaterials in Cosmetic Products." This guidance is being issued consistent with our good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The guidance represents our current thinking on this topic. It does not create or confer any rights for or on any person and does not operate to bind FDA or the public. An alternative approach may be used if such approach satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.

In the Federal Register of April 25, 2012 (77 FR 24722), we made available a draft guidance entitled "Guidance for Industry: Safety of Nanomaterials in Cosmetic Products" and gave interested parties an opportunity to submit comments by July 24, 2012, for us to consider before beginning work on the final version of the guidance. We received several comments on the draft guidance and have modified the final guidance where appropriate. Changes to the guidance include:

- The addition of several references, such as references pertaining to analytical techniques for measuring physicochemical properties of nanomaterials;
- Revised text concerning potential differences between nanomaterials and their larger-scale counterparts with the same chemical composition. For example, the guidance discusses how the small particle size of a nanomaterial has the potential to alter biodistribution and bioavailability;
- New text concerning thorough characterization of nanomaterials; and
- Revised text concerning toxicology considerations and toxicological testing.

In addition, we made editorial changes to improve clarity.

The guidance announced in this notice finalizes the draft guidance dated April 2012.
