Abstract: In December 2003, a long-standing exclusion of discharges incidental to the normal operation of vessels from the NPDES program became the subject of a lawsuit in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California (Northwest Env'tl. Advocates et al. v. United States EPA, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5373 (N.D. Cal. 2005)). The District Court issued a final order in September 2006 providing that the blanket exemption for discharges incidental to the normal operation of a vessel, contained in 40 CFR § 122.3(a), shall be vacated as of September 30, 2008. On July 23, 2008, the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the District Court's decision. This meant that, effective December 19, 2008, except for those vessels exempted from NPDES permitting by congressional legislation, discharges incidental to the normal operation of vessels that were excluded from NPDES permitting by 40 CFR § 122.3(a) were subject to the Clean Water Act (CWA) section 301 prohibition against discharging, unless authorized by an NPDES permit.

In late July 2008, Congress enacted two pieces of legislation to exempt discharges incidental to the normal operation of certain types of vessels from the need to obtain an NPDES permit.

The first of these, entitled the Clean Boating Act of 2008, amends the CWA to provide that discharges incidental to the normal operation of recreational vessels are not subject to NPDES permitting, and instead, creates a new regulatory regime to be implemented by EPA and the U.S. Coast Guard under the new 312(o) of the CWA. S. 2766, Pub. L. 110-188 (July 29, 2008).

The second piece of legislation provided for a temporary moratorium on NPDES permitting for discharges, except for ballast water, subject to the 40 CFR § 122.3(a) exclusion from (1) commercial fishing vessels (as defined in 46 U.S.C. § 2101 and regardless of size) and (2) from those other non-recreational vessels less than 79 feet in length. S. 3298, Pub. L/10-299 (July 31, 2008). The statute's NPDES permitting moratorium ran for a two-year period beginning on its July 31, 2008 enactment date, during which time EPA was to study the relevant discharges and submit a report to Congress. EPA finalized this Report to Congress, entitled "Study of Discharges Incidental to Normal Operation of Commercial Fishing Vessels and Other Non-Recreational Vessels Less Than 79 Feet" in August 2010 (EPA, 2010), a copy of which is available on EPA's Web site at <http://www.epa.gov/npdes/vessels>. The moratorium was subsequently extended to December 18, 2013 by P.L. 111-215 and further extended to December 18, 2014 by the Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation Act of 2012 (H.R. 2838) signed on December 20, 2012 (Pub. L. 112-213).

On December 8, 2011, EPA published the draft permit in the Federal Register and the Agency published the final Small Vessel General Permit (sVGP) also in today's Federal Register to ensure that NPDES permit coverage is available for those vessels currently excluded from permitting by that moratorium.

This ICR calculates the burden and costs associated with the NPDES program, identifies the types of activities regulated under the NPDES program, and describes the roles and responsibilities of the Agency associated with the sVGP.

Form numbers: None.

Respondents/affected entities: Entities potentially affected by this action are owners/operators of commercial fishing vessels and non-recreational, non-military vessels less than 79 feet in length that are operating as a means of transportation with incidental discharges to waters of the United States.

Respondent's obligation to respond: required for owners/operators needing to obtain or retain the benefit of permit coverage under the sVGP.

Estimated number of respondents: 137,739 (total).

Frequency of response: Once, annually as needed, quarterly.

Total estimated burden: 138,597 hours (per year). Burden is defined at 5 CFR 1320.03(b).

Total estimated cost: $5,064,298 (per year), includes $0 annualized capital or operation & maintenance costs.

Changes in estimates: This is a new information collection.

Dated: August 29, 2014.

Acting Director, Office of Wastewater Management.
