Proposed Project

CDC Workplace Health Promotion Resource Center—New—National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (NCCDPHP), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Background and Brief Description

The United States faces an unparalleled epidemic of poor health, driven largely by chronic diseases and conditions. A large body of literature shows that poor health, preceded by high levels of modifiable risk factors, is directly correlated with higher health care costs. Chronic conditions affect the workplace through health care costs, employee absences, safety claims, and presenteeism (i.e., decrements in job performance due to health problems).

Workplaces are becoming important settings for health improvement and risk reduction. By improving the work health environment and helping workers achieve long-term behavior change, employers can diminish employees' risks for illnesses, enhance their quality of life, improve morale, eliminate unnecessary health care spending, minimize absences from work, reduce accidents, and increase productivity. Furthermore, having a healthy and productive workforce within a supportive work environment can foster greater loyalty among workers, a more committed workforce, and reduced turnover rates.

Despite their interest in improving the health and well-being of American workers, public and private employers often lack the know-how to do so effectively. A need exists for a trusted resource center housed in a virtual informational clearinghouse (IC) where employers and other stakeholders can access credible research (including best and promising practices), tools and resources, and technical assistance.

CDC plans to conduct information collection needed to design and implement a new CDC Workplace Health Promotion Resource Center (Resource Center), where relevant resources will be vetted, catalogued, compiled, and made publicly available to employers and other key stakeholders. Through the Resource Center, CDC will also provide technical assistance (TA) to employers, with the ultimate aim of improving population health, reducing health care utilization, and improving the productivity of employees. These activities are consistent with CDC's role as the primary Federal agency for protecting health and promoting quality of life through the prevention and control of disease, injury, and disability. The CDC Workplace Health Promotion Resource Center is authorized by the Public Health Service Act and funded through the Prevention and Public Health Fund of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Resource Center development and information collection will be conducted in two phases over a three-year period. In Phase 1 (project years 1 and 2), CDC will conduct formative research to understand the needs and preferences of the target audience. In Phase 2 (project years 2 and 3), CDC will build the Resource Center and IC, provide technical assistance, and assess customer satisfaction.

During Phase 1, CDC will conduct telephone interviews with 50 individuals who represent key Resource Center audiences: Employers (N=10), business groups (N=10), vendors and consultants (N=12), public health organizations (N=4), journalists (N=4), and researchers (N=10). Each tailored interview will be 45–60 minutes in length. Additional information will be collected through an online Needs and Interests Market Survey involving 800 respondents. Findings will be used to tailor the contents, technical support and dissemination practices of the Resource Center to the needs and interests of the target audiences.

During Phase 2, Resource Center products will be launched and CDC will collect brief, online customer satisfaction surveys from approximately 850 users. CDC will also pilot test and evaluate a direct technical assistance component of the Resource Center with approximately 5 selected states using two online surveys: a TA feedback survey and TA pilot assessment. The TA feedback survey will be offered to up to 100 stakeholders after each TA encounter and will take approximately 5 minutes. The TA pilot assessment will be provided at the conclusion of the TA pilot to up to 100 stakeholders and will take approximately 20 minutes. Findings will be used to improve workplace health programs and the offerings of the Resource Center.

OMB approval is requested for three years. Participation is voluntary and there are no costs to respondents other than their time.
