SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

FDA is announcing the availability of a draft guidance for industry entitled “Inclusion of Older Adults in Cancer Clinical Trials.” This draft guidance provides recommendations for stakeholders, including sponsors and institutional review boards, responsible for the development and oversight of clinical trials regarding the inclusion of older adult patients (i.e., age 65 years and older) in clinical trials of drugs for the treatment of cancer. The draft guidance emphasizes the particular importance of including adults over age 75 years in cancer clinical trials.

Enrolling an adequate representation of the range of patients in a clinical trial that may be exposed to a drug after approval can maximize the generalizability of the trial results. It provides the ability to understand the drug’s benefit-risk profile across the patient population likely to use the drug in clinical practice. Including information in the labeling describing use in older adults helps to promote the safe and effective use of these products and better informs treatment decisions in clinical practice.

Older adults are underrepresented in cancer clinical trials despite representing a growing segment of the population of cancer patients. Therefore, more information is needed to better inform treatment decisions for older adults with cancer. The issue persists in oncology despite FDA’s efforts to increase the inclusion of older adults in clinical trials.

The draft guidance recommends that sponsors of cancer trials consider the age demographics of their target population early in development and that a strategy for inclusion of older adults be informed by any known information for older adults. The draft guidance includes recommendations for inclusion of older adults related to early clinical development; clinical trials, including considerations for trial design, recruitment, and developing and reporting discrete age subgroups; and the postmarket setting.

This draft guidance is being issued consistent with FDA’s good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The draft guidance, when finalized, will represent the current thinking of FDA on “Inclusion of Older Adults in Cancer Clinical Trials.” It does not establish any rights for any person and is not binding on FDA or the public. You can use an alternative approach if it satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.

II. Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995

This draft guidance refers to previously approved FDA collections of information. These collections of information are subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3501–3521). The collections of information in 21 CFR part 312 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0014; the collections of information in 21 CFR part 314 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0001; the collections of information in 21 CFR part 601 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0338; and the collections of information in 21 CFR 201.56 and 201.57 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0572.
