SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

CM&S can be used in a variety of ways in medical device applications, including to perform in silico (virtual) device testing or as part of algorithms within software embedded in a device. However, regulatory submissions involving CM&S often lack clear information for why model predictions can be considered credible. This draft guidance provides a risk-based framework that can be used in the credibility assessment of CM&S used in medical device regulatory submissions. This draft guidance builds upon the FDA-recognized consensus standard American Society of Mechanical Engineers V&V 40, "Assessing Credibility of Computational Modeling Through Verification and Validation: Application to Medical Devices," by providing a general framework for demonstrating CM&S credibility that incorporates the different types of evidence typically generated for regulatory submissions. The framework is intended to be applicable to any use of CM&S in a medical device submission. It is not specific to any device type, modeling discipline or clinical specialty.

This draft guidance is being issued consistent with FDA's good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The draft guidance, when finalized, will represent the current thinking of FDA on "Assessing the Credibility of Computational Modeling and Simulation in Medical Device Submissions." It does not establish any rights for any person and is not binding on FDA or the public. You can use an alternative approach if it satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.

II. Electronic Access

Persons interested in obtaining a copy of the draft guidance may do so by downloading an electronic copy from the internet. A search capability for all Center for Devices and Radiological Health guidance documents is available at <https://www.fda.gov/medical-devices/device-advice-comprehensive-regulatory-assistance/guidance-documents-medical-devices-and-radiation-emitting-products>.
