

12 months forwarding period. Id. at 2. It claims that the test demonstrated simple operational implementation providing customers who move greater control over their mail forwarding expiration dates. The Postal Service also indicates the addition provides a new revenue stream and has reduced Undeliverable as Addressed handling costs. Id.

According to the Postal Service, Extended Mail Forwarding meets the requirements of 39 CFR 3045.18(b) by offering the same services as the experimental product with the same distinct costs and market characteristics, and is based on the data collected during the market test. Id. at 2–3.

The Postal Service also claims the proposed product complies with 39 CFR 3045.18(c) because the product and price category is the same as the product at the heart of the market test. Id. at 3. The price points will be $19.95 for a 6-month extension, $29.95 for a 12-month extension, and $39.95 for an 18-month extension. Id. at 3.

The Postal Service states that, as a new offering, Extended Mail Forwarding does not have price cap implications since it lacks volume history and billing determinants that could be used to calculate a price cap effect and that it is not a rate change subject to 39 U.S.C. 3622(d).<sup>4</sup> It also points out Extended Mail Forwarding is a new optional feature and does not divert volumes from an existing product by which volumes could be inferred. Request at 3–4. In addition, pursuant to the requirement in 39 CFR 3045.18(c)(3), the Postal Service claims that the market will remain stable into the permanent phase. Id. at 4. The Postal Service states that the market test generated cumulative total revenue of almost $42.2 million. Id. The Postal Service also claims the product-specific costs associated with the development of the Extended Mail Forwarding market test were $505,983.29, including program management and IT-related costs, and have been relatively stable from quarter to quarter. Id. at 4–5.

Included as Attachment A to the Request is proposed MCS language. Included as Attachment B are data collection reports filed during the market test as required by 39 CFR 3045.18(c)(4). Included as Attachment C is the Governors' resolution authorizing the Request. The Postal Service explains that it would like to implement the product on July 10, 2022, to align Extended Mail Forwarding with other IT programming changes, and thus requests the Commission issue a final order no later than May 16, 2022. Id. at 5.

Pursuant to rule 3040.133, the Commission provides interested persons an opportunity to express views and offer comments on the proposed addition to the MCS. Comments are due no later than March 7, 2022. Reply comments may be filed no later than March 14, 2022. The Postal Service's Request in Docket No. MC2022–40 can be accessed on the Commission's website (<http://www.prc.gov>).<sup>5</sup>

Pursuant to 39 U.S.C. 505, Richard A. Oliver is appointed to serve as an officer of the Commission (Public Representative) to represent the interests of the general public in the above-captioned docket.
