

human remains significantly predate A.D. 1700. Although the human remains from Onaquaga cannot be associated with a particular tribal group, given the geographic location of Onaquaga and the history of settlement there, they can be reasonably culturally affiliated with the Oneida Indian Nation (previously listed as Oneida Nation of New York); Onondaga Nation; Saint Regis Mohawk Tribe (previously listed as St. Regis Band of Mohawk Indians of New York); and Tuscarora Nation.

Determinations Made by the Department of Anthropology, Cornell University

Officials of the Department of Anthropology, Cornell University have determined that:

History and Description of the Remains

From 2018 to 2020, human remains representing, at minimum, 19 individuals were removed from archeological site 5LP.2223 in La Plata County, CO, by Alpine Archeological Consultants, during archeological monitoring and excavations as part of the US 550/160 South Connection project, a highway construction project jointly undertaken by the Colorado Department of Transportation (CDOT) and the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA). The site is in the CDOT right of way. Under the Colorado Unmarked Human Graves Statute (Colo. Rev. Stat. sections 24–80–1301–1305), Native American human remains found on state or private land in Colorado fall under the jurisdiction of the Office of the State Archaeologist. This matter was assigned Office of Archaeology and Historic Preservation Case Number 340. No known individuals were identified. The 12 associated funerary objects are one deer phalanx, two lots of fish bones, one lot of shell bead fragments, and eight lots of ceramics.

In 2002, consultation regarding the US 550/160 project was initiated by CDOT with representatives of The Consulted Tribes with an established interest in La Plata County, CO. The Hopi Tribe of Arizona; Pueblo of Laguna, New Mexico; and the Southern Ute Indian Tribe of the Southern Ute Reservation, Colorado indicated their cultural affiliation with the proposed areas of construction and entered into agreements with CDOT, FHWA, the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, and the Colorado State Historic Preservation Office. During these consultations, it was determined that inadvertently discovered human remains from this project would be culturally affiliated with the Hopi Tribe of Arizona; Pueblo of Laguna, New Mexico; and the Southern Ute Indian Tribe of the Southern Ute Reservation, Colorado (hereafter referred to as “The Tribes”).

- Pursuant to 25 U.S.C. 3001(2), there is a relationship of shared group identity that can be reasonably traced between the Native American human remains and associated funerary objects and The Tribes.
