I. Funding Opportunity Description

The Administration for Community Living (ACL) announces a new funding opportunity to address the needs of people with disabilities impacted by Hurricanes Fiona and Ian. People with disabilities often have unique needs during a crisis. For example, they may have a wider variety of functional limitations, sometimes requiring more supports, many of which are often in short supply during and after a crisis event. It is critical that individuals, service providers, and communities actively engage in emergency planning and response that is inclusive of people with disabilities to ensure they continue to be supported in their communities and not in institutions. Effective emergency and disaster response and recovery promotes and protects the health of people and the communities where they live, learn, work, and play. The disability networks funded by ACL play essential roles in that work. As the nation's visible and trusted network of programs, these organizations provide a variety of services, including those related to assisting with emergency and disaster recovery efforts, such as offering case management support, relocating impacted individuals to safe housing in the community, and ensuring state and local services provided are accessible to people with disabilities. Understanding the resources available and the needs of people with disabilities in their areas, these networks have over 50 years of community experience and possess intimate knowledge of how to address emergencies and disasters.

Puerto Rico and Florida were directly impacted by major category 4 hurricanes which significantly affected the vital services and programs that support older adults, people with disabilities, and their family caregivers to live as independently as possible in their own communities. The Aging and Disability Network has been attempting to meet an increased need for services in impacted communities with current Older Americans Act (OAA) funding, Rehabilitation Act funding, and Developmental Disabilities Act funding. None of these authorities include direct funding for disaster related activities and programs are redirecting funds intended for other activities to address immediate needs caused by the Hurricanes. This funding is intended for the ACL Aging and Disability Network in Florida and Puerto Rico to help advance recovery and response efforts that are inclusive of people with disabilities and provide gap-filling services for older adults, people with disabilities, and their family caregivers for immediate and long-term disaster response and recovery.

Specifically, this program aims to fund CILs to support the needs of people with disabilities who were impacted by Hurricane Ian in Florida and Hurricane Fiona in Puerto Rico to ensure their health, wellness, and safety. Eligible entities, Centers for Independent Living (CILs) under the Rehabilitation Act (Rehab Act), shall be provided funding for allowable activities that are targeted for recovery and response efforts for the disability community.

Allowable costs include program and staffing costs to support response and recovery efforts; program materials and supply costs to support response and recovery efforts; general outreach and information and referral regarding disaster and recovery assistance for people with disabilities; monitoring emergency shelters and temporary dwellings for accessibility, health, wellness, and safety; coordination with emergency response, recovery partners, and other state, local, and tribal agencies to ensure the needs of people with disabilities are met; accessible housing location, home modification, and transition assistance for those placed in institutional settings or in need of safe housing; food assistance and home delivered groceries/meals; assistance with personal care attendants and transportation; and replacement and distribution costs of critical supplies, including personal hygiene items, durable medical equipment, and medication not covered through insurance. As needed, funds may also support rebuilding of damaged offices of ACL grantees, including CILs. Although not required for funding, grantees are encouraged to explore options for funding to sustain emergency response activities after the end of the grant. There is no cost sharing or matching requirement for this funding.

Award recipients will be required to submit an annual progress report in the form of a written summary on the activities and/or staffing funded to support emergency and disaster response and recovery efforts and the results of these efforts, including number of people supported, number of partners involved, and the outcomes of these efforts.

To be eligible to receive this grant, the eligible entity must submit:

- an action plan (maximum 5–10 pages in 12-point, Times New Roman font). The action plan should define the need they plan to address and how they intend to implement authorized activities to address the needs of people with disabilities impacted by Hurricanes Fiona or Ian.

- a budget request (5 pages maximum) with justification for how the funds would be used to support disaster recovery efforts.

- a Letter of Assurance to ACL (see below, "Section III. Eligibility Criteria and Other Requirements" and "Section IV. Submission Information").

Collaboration with other entities that serve people with disabilities in the plan and the budget is encouraged. Eligible entities that do not submit an action plan, a budget request with justification, and a Letter of Assurance will not be considered for funding.
