Abstract: RadNet is a national network of stations collecting environmental media that include air, precipitation, and drinking water. Samples are sent to EPA’s National Analytical Radiation Environmental Lab (NAREL) in Montgomery, Alabama, where they are analyzed for radioactivity. RadNet provides emergency response/homeland security and ambient monitoring information on levels of environmental radiation across the nation. All stations operators participate in RadNet voluntarily. Station operators complete information forms that accompany the samples. The forms request information pertaining to sample type, sample location, start and stop date and times for sampling, length of sampling period, and volume represented. Data from RadNet are made available regularly on the Agency websites—Envirofacts and the EPA website www.epa.gov/radnet.

Form numbers: RadNet Air Particulate Sample (EPA Form 5900-24); RadNet Precipitation Report Form (EPA Form 5900-27); RadNet Drinking Water Report Form (EPA Form 5900-29); and RadNet Supply Request Form (EPA Form 5900-23).

Respondents/affected entities:

Primarily State and Local Officials.

Respondent’s obligation to respond: Voluntary.Estimated number of respondents: 213.Frequency of response: Varies depending upon sample media type. Responses vary from twice weekly to quarterly.Total estimated burden: 3,640 hours (per year). Burden is defined at 5 CFR 1320.03(b).Total estimated cost: $2,622,124 (per year), includes annualized capital costs, operational costs, and maintenance costs.Changes in estimates: There is a 2.2 percent reduction in burden from 3,722 hours annually. While the RadNet network is fully established and operating with essentially no changes expected, 30% of the drinking water sampling locations have not responded since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic. There is a 4.5 percent increase in costs due to increases in federal and contractor salaries and cost of goods and supplies.Jonathan D. Edwards,Director, Office of Radiation and Indoor Air.*
