

SDR completion times and the addition of new retirement-related items for a subsample of respondents, NCSES estimates an average completion time of approximately 22 minutes.

Additionally, a pre-field survey will be sent to approximately 30% of sample members (37,574) before the 2025 cycle to ask for updated contact information, which is estimated to take 3 minutes to complete and will have a 30% response rate. NCSES estimates that the average annual burden for the 2023 survey cycle over the course of the three-year OMB clearance period will be no more than 10,903 hours [(125,246 individuals × 70% response × 22 minutes) + (37,574 individuals × 30% response × 3 minutes)/60 minutes/3 years].

Comment: On 6 December 2022, NCSES published in the Federal Register (87 FR 2022–74664) a 60-day notice of its intent to request reinstatement of this information collection authority from OMB. In that notice, NCSES solicited public comments for 60 days ending 6 February 2023. One public comment was received. On 6 December 2022, Dr. Andrew Reamer of George Washington University sent an email to NSF on behalf of the American Economic Association and the Industry Studies Association. He requested the draft information collection request (ICR) materials for the 2023 SDR. NSF responded to Dr. Reamer on 22 December 2022, explaining that the 2023 SDR ICR materials were in the process of being prepared and that there were no substantive changes planned, except that all the COVID-related items will be removed from the questionnaire and items pertaining to retirement will be added. He was directed to past cycle SDR questionnaires on the NSF website, which would be updated to reflect the survey year. Relative to the first notice, there are two substantive changes: (1) The first notice estimated the respondent burden to be no more than 12,639 hours based on an average completion time of 25 minutes. The average time to complete has been revised to 22 minutes based on the finalized 2023 SDR survey content and actual survey administration times from the 2021 SDR which was 19.2 minutes on average in online modes, decreasing the estimated respondent burden by 1,736 hours. (2) The survey launch date is now planned for August 2023 rather than June 2023 to allow for additional survey design planning, including inclusion of a new survey item module about retirement.

Comments are invited on (a) whether the proposed collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of NCSES, including whether the information shall have practical utility; (b) the accuracy of NCSES's estimate of the burden of the proposed collection of information; (c) ways to enhance the quality, use, and clarity of the information on respondents, including through the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology; and (d) ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on those who are to respond, including through the use of appropriate automated, electronic, mechanical, or other technological collection techniques or other forms of information technology.
