DHS/CBP is updating this system of records to expand the category of records included in the system. The exemptions for the existing system of records notice will continue to be applicable for this updated system of records notice. This modified system of records notice will be included in the DHS inventory of record systems.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

In accordance with the Privacy Act of 1974, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) proposes to update and reissue a current Department of Homeland Security system of records titled, "DHS/U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP)-022 Electronic Visa Update System (EVUS) System of Records. Upon arrival at a United States port of entry (POE), nonimmigrants¹ are typically required to present a valid passport, a travel and identity document issued by the traveler's country of citizenship, and valid visa, a document in which an individual applies for that is within the passport signifying that the United States has given the individual permission to enter the country for a specific period. Visa validity periods can vary considerably, and some visas are valid for extended periods of up to ten years, and often for multiple entries.

Frequent travelers to the United States who hold visas with short validity periods must reapply more frequently than those who hold visas with longer validity periods. While visas with a longer validity period provide an opportunity for individuals to travel to the United States with greater ease, it does not allow the U.S. Government to receive regularly updated biographic and other information from repeat visitors who travel to the United States multiple times over the span of the visa.² As such, individuals traveling on these visas with longer validity periods are screened using information that is not as recent as for individuals who must obtain visas more frequently. This

² The information updates provided through the visa re-application process include basic biographical and eligibility elements that can change over time (e.g., address, name, employment, criminal history).
