Abstract: The CHIPS Act of 2022, Public Law 117–167, § 10314, requires the Director of NSF to provide a portfolio analysis of NSF’s investments in the skilled technical workforce. With the widespread integration of science and technology in society, including its central role in the economy, work has changed for individuals at all education levels, making skilled technical workers increasingly important to U.S. economic competitiveness, national security, and scientific progress. American workers who use science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) knowledge and skills in their jobs but do not require a bachelor’s degree or above comprise the skilled technical workforce (STW). While some limited federal data exist to quantify the number of skilled technical workers, the National Training, Education, and Workforce Survey (NTEWS) allows for a longitudinal analysis to measure the pathways of how individuals enter, maintain relevance, or seek advancement in STW occupations.

The NTEWS continues to be a voluntary response data collection sponsored by the National Center for
