Proposed Project

Public Health Law Fellowship (PHL Fellowship) Program: Assessment of Quality and Value—New—National Center for STLT Public Health Infrastructure and Workforce (NCSTLTPHIW), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Background and Brief Description

The mission of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is to enhance the health and well-being of all Americans. As part of HHS, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) works to protect America from health, safety, and security threats, both foreign and in the U.S. CDC strives to fulfill this mission, in part, through a competent and capable public health workforce. One mechanism to developing the public health workforce is through training programs like the Public Health Law Fellowship Program (PHL Fellowship).

The mission of the PHL Fellowship is to train and provide experiential learning to current students and early career professionals in public health law and policy. The PHL Fellowship targets current graduate students and law students, as well as recent graduates of graduate and law programs with a demonstrated interest in public health law. It is the goal of this fellowship that following participation in the program, alumni will seek employment within the public health law system (i.e., Federal, State, Tribal, local, or Territorial health agencies, or non-governmental organizations), focusing on health equity and/or emergency response.

This fellowship was created pursuant to American Rescue Plan funding to expand on the Public Health Law Program’s intern/extern program. There were no prior efforts to systematically evaluate the intern/extern program necessitating the creation of a systematic plan for administering, monitoring, and evaluating the PHL Fellowship. Evaluation priorities focus on continuously learning about program processes and activities to improve the program’s quality and documenting program outcomes to demonstrate impact and inform decision-making about future program direction. The purpose of this data collection is to inform these evaluation priorities through the collection of information from host site supervisors (n=40), fellowship participants (current cohort of fellows in a given year, n=70), and alumni (n=70). These data collections will be instrumental in helping CDC staff learn about these important stakeholder perspectives and will yield results that describe quality, impact, and value. Data will also inform program improvements such as refining the host site selection and matching process. Collection of this information moving forward will continue to meet these purposes and allow for longitudinal assessment of the PHL Fellowship, giving program leaders opportunities to see how this fellowship influences alumni career progression and contributions to public health over time.

OMB approval is requested for three years. Participation in the PHL Fellowship Program is voluntary but participation in data collection is required. There are no costs to respondents other than their time. The total estimated annualized burden is 149 hours.
