

Based on a current evaluation of the information collection, we have adjusted the burden estimate. Our estimated burden for the information collection reflects an overall increase of 2,687 hours and a corresponding increase of 2,687 responses. CDER has instituted electronic certificates of pharmaceutical product (eCPP) to streamline the application process and reduce the time from receipt to issuance of export certificates. The increase in CDER export application requests is attributable to the implementation of the eCPP and an increase in drug exports. The increase is offset by a decrease in CVM and CBER export applications attributable to consequences of the pandemic.
