SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

OMB Control Number: 2105-0568.
Title: Revision of the Office of Aviation Consumer Protection's Online Air Travel Service Complaint/Comment Form.

Abstract: The Department of Transportation's (Department) Office of Aviation Consumer Protection (OACP) has broad authority under 49 U.S.C., subtitle VII, to investigate and enforce consumer protection and civil rights laws and regulations related to air transportation. OACP monitors compliance with and investigates violations of the Department of Transportation's aviation economic, consumer protection, and civil rights requirements.

Among other things, the office is responsible for receiving and investigating service-related consumer complaints filed against airlines and other air travel-related companies. Complaints submitted to OACP are reviewed by the office to determine the extent to which these entities comply with federal aviation consumer protection and civil rights laws and what, if any, action should be taken. OACP also receives general comments and inquiries from air consumers via the online form, but those are very few compared to the number of complaints filed by consumers on an annual basis. (See Tables 1 and 2, below).

This request is to revise the current information collection due to updates that OACP is making to the office's online air consumer complaint form as part of an Information Technology (IT) system modernization project.<sup>1</sup> The updated process continues to allow consumers to input information related to complaints about their flight experience, as well as to submit general inquiries/comments. However, air consumers submitting complaints or comments via the modernized system will be efficiently guided through their entry by a data input system using conditional logic. The modernized system includes additional information fields and, combined with the guided entry, will better ensure an individual air consumer's specific concerns are more comprehensively captured in the system database.

The modernized process will also streamline OACP's ability to review data and analyze complaints. The revised process will also reduce manual analyst processing steps. These improvements will increase the office's ability to effectively investigate individual complaints against airlines and other air travel-related companies. This consumer-driven submission process enhances the information collected and positively impacts OACP's ability to learn about patterns and practices that may develop in violation of aviation consumer protection requirements. The information collection continues to further the objectives of 49 U.S.C. 41712, 40101, 40127, 41702, and 41705 to protect consumers from unfair or deceptive practices, to protect the civil rights of air travelers, and to ensure safe and adequate service in air transportation.

The type of information requested on OACP’s online form that is active and currently covered by the existing OMB Control number includes complainant’s name, address, phone number (including area code), email address, and name of the airline or company about which she/he is complaining, as well as the flight date and flight itinerary (where applicable) of a complainant’s trip. Air travel consumers use the current form for complaints (to provide narrative information regarding a specific air-travel related problem) or comments (to comment about or ask for air-travel related information from OACP).

The modernized intake process guides an aviation consumer through the following four steps: (1) Contact Information, (2) Flight Information, (3) Complaint Details, and (4) Complaint Review and Submission. Similar information is requested for comments.

New/updated consumer-related information includes the country of residence, whether the trip involved a flight through the U.S. or a U.S. territory, certain booking information, and the passenger’s arrival/departure airports. As currently drafted, the modernized online multi-step intake process allows consumers (via radio buttons) to include information about problems associated with the following main categories/subject areas:

- (1) Flight Schedule Issues;
- (2) Bumping or Oversales;
- (3) Reservations/Ticketing/Boarding;
- (4) Fees or Ticket Fares;
- (5) Refunds;
- (6) Baggage/Luggage;
- (7) Customer Service;
- (8) Disability Accommodations (including service animals);
- (9) Advertising;
- (10) Discrimination (not disability related);
- (11) Animals/Pet (not service animals);
- (12) Safety;
- (13) Security;
- (14) Inflight Sexual Misconduct; and
- (15) Other Problems (e.g., frequent flyer miles, air ambulance).

Once a consumer chooses a category, the consumer is guided through a series of Yes/No questions that capture relevant information pertaining to the nature of the complaint. An air travel consumer can choose one or more complaint categories depending on the nature of his/her experience and has the option to include narrative information.

Both the currently active online air travel consumer complaint form and the modernized guided intake process include the ability for a consumer to upload documents relevant to the complaint/comment.

Filing a complaint using a web-based form is voluntary and minimizes the burden on respondents when compared with other methods of submitting complaints. In recent years, consumers have submitted most complaints online via their personal computer or on a mobile/electronic device.

Approximately ninety-seven percent of the submissions received by OACP during calendar years (CYs) 2021 and 2022 were filed using the web-based form as shown in the table below.<sup>2</sup>

OACP has limited the request to information necessary to meet its aviation consumer protection monitoring and enforcement activities.
