

data, training screeners, conducting the oral health screening at schools or Head Start sites. Screeners record four data points either electronically or on a paper form: (1) presence of treated caries; (2) presence of untreated tooth decay; (3) urgency of need for treatment; and (4) presence of dental sealants on at least one permanent molar tooth.

State programs enter, clean and analyze the data; de-identify it; and respond to ASTDD’s annual email request for State-aggregated prevalence of dental caries and sealants. ASTDD reviews the data to ensure that both survey design and data meet specific criteria before sending it to CDC for publication on the CDC’s public-facing Oral Health Data website (www.cdc.gov/oralhealthdata).

BSS for children serves as a key State oral health surveillance data source and facilitates State capacity to: (1) monitor children’s oral health status, trends, and disparities, and compare with other States; (2) inform planning, implementation and evaluation of effective oral health programs and policies; (3) measure State progress toward Healthy People objectives; and (4) educate the public and policy makers regarding cross-cutting public health programs. CDC also uses the data to evaluate performance of CDC oral health funding recipients.

The estimated total annualized burden hours for the survey across the 34 States over the three years of this request are 40,207. There are no costs to children respondents other than their time.
