I. Background

The United States is home to tens of thousands of museums. Together, they steward living and non-living collections and, through their programs and services, contribute to the cultural health, economic vitality, and social well-being of the communities they serve. A regular sector-wide data-gathering effort is needed to better understand the museum sector and the services it provides.

IMLS is exercising its authority under 20 U.S. Code § 9108 to conduct a new survey that fills this need: the National Museum Survey (NMS). The NMS will be a voluntary survey of museums that aims to capture the scope and scale of museums' presence and reach within the United States over time. The survey will collect foundational, high-level data directly from museums to inform policymakers, the museum field, and the public about the role that the nation's diverse museums play in American society.
