II. Background Information and Regulatory History

The Coast Guard is issuing this temporary rule under authority in 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(B). This statutory provision authorizes an agency to issue a rule without prior notice and opportunity to comment when the agency for good cause finds that those procedures are “impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest.” The Coast Guard finds that good cause exists for not publishing a notice of proposed rulemaking (NPRM) with respect to this rule because it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to do so. The Coast Guard received insufficient notice from the event sponsor to be able to publish an NPRM, receive, consider, and respond to public comments in time to publish a final rule prior to the date of the event.

Also, under 5 U.S.C. 553(d)(3), the Coast Guard finds that good cause exists for making this rule effective less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register. Delaying the effective date of this rule by 30 days is impracticable because the notice we received is also insufficient to do so if the rule is to go into effect on May 6.

III. Legal Authority and Need for Rule

The Coast Guard is issuing this rule under authority in 46 U.S.C. 70034. The Captain of the Port, Sector St. Petersburg (COTP) has determined that potential hazards associated with the demonstration will be a safety concern for anyone within the exercise area. This rule is needed to protect personnel,
