SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93–498, as amended) (15 U.S.C. 2201 et seq.) originates from an exhaustive and comprehensive examination of the Nation’s fire problem, which made detailed findings as to the extent of this problem in terms of human suffering and loss of life and property, and made ninety thoughtful recommendations. Many of these recommendations relate directly to the instruments which are a part of this collection of information such as the National Fire Data Center, several fire data repositories, the National Fire Academy, and Fire & Emergency Management Services (EMS) information requests for safety and educational materials, just to name a few.

Executive Order 12862 directs Federal Agencies to provide service to the public that matches or exceeds the best service available in the private sector. To work continuously to ensure that our programs are effective and meet our customers’ needs, FEMA seeks to obtain Office of Management and Budget approval of a generic clearance to collect qualitative and quantitative data feedback on our service delivery. By qualitative feedback, we mean information that provides useful insights on perceptions and opinions and numerical data on fire and EMS incidents that yield quantitative results that can be generalized to the population of study.

USFA maintains several information technology systems which assist USFA in delivering information, products, and services to the fire service, affiliated organizations, and the public. Collecting information for these instruments aid in the administration of USFA programs in support of state, local, Tribal, and territorial assistance as well as individuals, Federal Government, and members of the private sector.

This collection of information is necessary to enable the USFA to garner customer and stakeholder feedback in an efficient, timely manner in accordance with our commitment to improving service delivery. The information collected from our customers and stakeholders will help ensure that users have an effective, efficient, and satisfying experience with the USFA’s programs. This feedback will provide insights into customer or stakeholder perceptions, experiences, and expectations; provide an early warning of issues with service; or focus attention on areas where communication, training, or changes in operations might improve delivery of products or services. These collections will allow for ongoing, collaborative, and actionable communications between the USFA and its customers and stakeholders. It will also allow feedback to contribute directly to the improvement of program management.
