

feasibility of the Twentymile Pumped Storage Project to be located near the town of Oak Creek in Routt County, Colorado. The sole purpose of a preliminary permit, if issued, is to grant the permit holder priority to file a license application during the permit term. A preliminary permit does not authorize the permit holder to perform any land-disturbing activities or otherwise enter upon lands or waters owned by others without the owners' express permission.

The proposed project will have an above ground upper reservoir and an underground lower reservoir. A net hydraulic head of approximately 1,300 feet is expected between the maximum water level in the upper reservoir and minimum water level in the underground lower reservoir. Initial filling of the upper reservoir will use existing available water located currently in the mine. The existing sealed voids of tunnels and galleries at mine sites will become the lower reservoir. The upper surface reservoir will have a surface elevation of approximately 7,600 feet msl and will be connected to the lower reservoir via an underground water conveyance system-penstock, access shafts and tunnels, and ventilation shafts, with a new underground powerhouse containing reversible pump-turbine generator units. The single penstock would be 16 feet in diameter that bifurcates to two units in the powerhouse.

The approximate storage volume of the upper reservoir will be approximately 1,550 acre-feet. The lower reservoir would have a surface elevation of 6,000 feet msl with a storage volume of approximately 1,550 acre-feet. A new, approximately 1.8-mile long 230-kilovolt (kV) overhead interconnection line will extend from the powerhouse to a substation. The powerhouse would contain two turbines and generators, with a generating capacity of 250 megawatts (MW) based on available hydraulic head and water to fill the reservoirs. Each turbine is rated for 133 MW, and each generator is rated for 125 MW. The estimated average annual generation is 547,500 MWh.
