

3. What are the requirements of the no work profile, and do we consider an individual's RFC when determining whether an individual meets this profile?

The no work profile demonstrates the inability to make an adjustment to other work for an individual who:

- has a severe impairment(s),²¹
- has no PRW,
- is age 55 or older, and
- has no more than a limited education.²²

Our adjudicators do not need to assess or consider RFC when applying the no work profile.

4. What are the requirements of the lifetime commitment profile, and how does the lifetime commitment profile apply to an individual who has worked at multiple jobs or for multiple employers?

The lifetime commitment profile demonstrates the inability to make an adjustment to other work for an individual who:

- is not working at SGA level,
- has a lifetime commitment (30 years or more) to a field of work that is unskilled, or that is skilled or semi-skilled but provided no transferable skills,
- can no longer perform this past work because of a severe impairment(s),
- is closely approaching retirement age (i.e., age 60 or older),²³ and
- has no more than a limited education.

For purposes of the lifetime commitment profile, the individual's 30 years of work do not have to have been at only one job or for only one employer. The jobs must have been in one field of work, meaning that the types of work the individual performed must have been very similar to one another. Use of this medical-vocational profile is appropriate even if the individual has work experience in a field(s) other than the one in which they have a 30-year lifetime commitment, as long as the work experience in the other field(s) is not PRW that the individual is still able to perform considering their RFC.

Policy Interpretation Ruling

SSR 24-2p: Titles II and XVI: How We Evaluate Past Relevant Work

This Social Security Ruling (SSR) rescinds SSR 86-8 and rescinds and replaces SSRs 82-61 and 82-62.

Purpose: The purpose of this SSR is to explain how we determine whether an individual retains the residual functional capacity (RFC) to perform the demands of their past relevant work (PRW). This SSR explains the policy set forth in our regulations so that those regulations will be consistently applied.

Dates: We will apply this SSR on June 22, 2024.¹

Policy Interpretation

To be disabled under title II of the Act, or as an adult under title XVI of the Act,² a claimant must be unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity (SGA) by reason of one or more medically determinable physical or mental impairments which can be expected to result in death, or which has lasted or can be expected to last for ¹ We will use this SSR beginning on its applicable date. We will apply this SSR to new applications filed on or after the applicable date of the SSR and to claims that are pending on and after the applicable date. This means that we will use this SSR on and after its applicable date in any case in which we make a determination or decision. We expect that Federal courts will review our final decisions using the rules that were in effect at the time we issued the decisions. If a court reverses our final decision and remands a case for further administrative proceedings after the applicable date of this SSR, we will apply this SSR to the entire period at issue in the decision we make after the court's remand.

² Individuals under age 18 who apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) under title XVI of the Act are disabled if they are not performing SGA and their medically determinable physical or mental impairment(s) causes marked and severe functional limitations and can be expected to cause death or has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of 12 months. See 42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)(3)(C) and 20 CFR 416.906.

²¹ For individuals aged 72 and older, we consider any medically determinable physical or mental impairment(s) that meets the duration requirement to be a severe impairment. SSR 03-3p: Policy Interpretation Ruling—Titles II and XVI: Evaluation of Disability and Blindness in Initial Claims for Individuals 65 or Older. For more information about the duration requirement, see SSR 23-1p: Titles II and XVI: Duration Requirement for Disability.

²² See 20 CFR 404.1564 and 416.964. Limited education means ability in reasoning, arithmetic, and language skills, but not enough to allow an individual with these educational qualifications to do most of the more complex job duties needed in semi-skilled or skilled jobs. We generally consider that a 7th grade through the 11th grade level of formal education is a limited education. However, the numerical grade level an individual completed in school may not reflect their actual educational abilities. 20 CFR 404.1564(b) and 416.964(b). For more information see SSR 20-1p.

a continuous period of at least 12 months.³ The Act also states that an individual shall be determined to have a disability only if their physical or mental impairment(s) is of such severity that they are not only unable to do their previous work but cannot, considering their age, education, and work experience, engage in any other kind of substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy, regardless of whether such work exists in the immediate area in which they live, or whether a specific job vacancy exists for them, or whether they will be hired if they apply for work.⁴ The Act defines work which exists in the national economy as work which exists in significant numbers either in the region where such individual lives or in several regions of the country.⁵

Past Relevant Work in the Sequential Evaluation Process

We use a five-step sequential evaluation process to determine whether an individual is disabled.⁶ Past work is a consideration at step four of that process.

At step four of the sequential evaluation process, we consider whether, given their RFC, the individual can perform any of their PRW either as the individual actually performed it or as the work is generally performed in the national economy.⁷ If we find that the individual can perform any of their PRW, we will find that the individual is not disabled. If the individual cannot perform any of their PRW, we go to the fifth step of the sequential evaluation process.⁸

Once an individual is found disabled and receives benefits, we may periodically conduct a continuing disability review (CDR) to determine whether the individual continues to be disabled.⁹ Although the CDR rules use a different sequential evaluation process, the final two steps of the process used for CDRs (steps seven and eight in title II cases and steps six and seven in adult title XVI cases) mirror the final two steps used in the sequential evaluation process for initial claims (steps four and five).¹⁰

3. How do we determine whether an individual's past work started and stopped in fewer than 30 calendar days?
4. How do we determine whether an individual performed work long enough to learn to do it?
5. How do we determine whether an individual can perform PRW?

6. How do we determine whether an individual can perform their PRW as they actually performed it?

7. How do we determine whether an individual can perform their PRW as it is generally performed in the national economy?

8. How do we obtain evidence concerning an individual's work history?

9. What information do we require when determining whether work is PRW that an individual can perform?

10. What findings and rationale must our determination or decision include when we find an individual is able to perform PRW?

Answers

1. How do we define PRW?

PRW is work that an individual has done within the past 5 years, that was SGA,¹¹ and that lasted long enough for the individual to learn to do it. Work that the individual started and stopped in fewer than 30 calendar days is not PRW.¹²

2. How do we determine whether an individual's past work was done within the past 5 years?

The relevant period for PRW is generally measured from the date of our determination or decision on a claim. In some situations, the relevant period is measured from an earlier date.¹³ The table below provides guidelines for common scenarios.

Type of claim	Relevant period—5-year period ends on
Title II Disability Insurance Benefits (DIB)—Date Last Insured (DLI) in the future	The date of adjudication.
Title II DIB—DLI in the past	The DLI.
Title II Widow or Widower, or Surviving Divorced Spouse (DWB)—Prescribed Period not expired.	The date of adjudication.
Title II DWB—Prescribed Period expired	The last day of the Prescribed Period.
Title II—Full Retirement Age (FRA) in the past	The day before attainment of FRA.
Title II Childhood Disability Beneficiaries (CDB)—Initial claim filed before age 22	The date of adjudication.
Title II CDB—Initial claim filed after age 22, no relevant work after age 22	The day before attainment of age 22.
Title II CDB—Reentitlement Claim, 7-year period applies and ended in the past	The last day of the reentitlement period.
Title II CDB—Reentitlement Claim, 7-year period applies and has not yet ended, or 7-year period does not apply.	The date of adjudication.
Title XVI Adult	The date of adjudication.
Title II or Title XVI Continuing Disability Review (CDR)	The date of CDR adjudication.

3. How do we determine whether an individual's past work started and stopped in fewer than 30 calendar days?

We will not consider work to be PRW if an individual started and stopped it in fewer than 30 calendar days. We consider 30 calendar days to be a period of 30 consecutive days, including weekends, starting from the first day of work. We generally do not consider the total number of hours or days worked during that period, or whether the work was full-time or part-time. The 30 calendar days requirement is separate from the consideration of SGA or whether an individual worked long enough to learn how to do the work, although the 30 calendar days may count toward the time needed for an individual to learn to do the work. If an individual was self-employed or an independent contractor, we will consider whether the individual was engaged in the same type of work for 30 calendar days, even if individual work assignments or contracts each lasted fewer than 30 calendar days.¹⁴

Example 1: On March 1, 2023, an individual began working a job that requires only a brief demonstration to learn. The individual's last day of work was March 30, 2023. The individual worked at the job for 30 calendar days because they started work on March 1, 2023, and their last day of work was on March 30, 2023. In this situation, the job would qualify as PRW if it was performed at the SGA level and during the 5-year relevant work period.

Example 2: On February 1, 2023, an individual began working a job that requires only a brief demonstration to learn. The individual's last day of work was February 28, 2023. Although the individual held the job long enough to learn to do it, the work started and stopped in fewer than 30 calendar days. In this situation, the job would not qualify as PRW, even if it was performed at the SGA level and during the 5-year relevant work period.

4. How do we determine whether an individual performed work long enough to learn to do it?

Long enough to learn means that the individual gained sufficient job experience to learn the techniques, acquire information, and develop the facility needed for average performance in the job. The length of time this would take depends on the nature and complexity of the work, which may be expressed as specific vocational preparation (SVP).

¹⁴ This would apply to "gig economy" type jobs as well, provided they meet the other requirements. For example, an individual completed 20 different shopping trips for a grocery delivery service but did so over a period of 30 calendar days or more. We would still require the individual to report that work experience as a single delivery job, because the individual did the same job for at least 30 calendar days. This is true even though each individual shopping trip started and stopped within a period of fewer than 30 calendar days.

5. How do we determine whether an individual can perform PRW?

We determine whether an individual can perform their PRW by considering whether the individual retains the RFC to meet the functional demands of any of their PRW as they actually performed it or as it is generally performed in the national economy.

6. How do we determine whether an individual can perform their PRW as they actually performed it?

When we determine whether an individual can perform their PRW as they actually performed it, we consider whether the individual retains the RFC to perform the particular functional demands peculiar to the work the individual did.

For information about the evidence we use to determine how an individual actually performed a job, see the guidance below at Question 9, What information do we require when determining whether work is PRW that an individual can perform?

7. How do we determine whether an individual can perform their PRW as it is generally performed in the national economy?

When we determine whether an individual can perform their PRW as it is generally performed in the national economy, we consider whether the individual retains the capacity to perform the occupation's functional demands as ordinarily required throughout the national economy.

We may rely on descriptions of occupations from reliable sources of job information to determine how occupations are generally performed. A vocational specialist or vocational expert may also provide information about how an occupation is generally performed in the national economy.

As actually performed, an individual's job may have involved functional demands that are different from those generally required for the occupation throughout the national economy. If the individual cannot meet the functional demands actually required in the former job but can meet the functional demands as generally required throughout the economy, we will find the individual able to perform PRW and not disabled.

8. How do we obtain evidence concerning an individual's work history?

An individual is the primary source for information concerning their work history, but we consider all available evidence and information. Statements by the individual about their past work are generally sufficient for determining the skill level and physical and mental demands of such work. If the individual cannot give us all the information we need, we may try, with the individual's permission, to get it from their employer or another person who knows about the individual's work, such as a family member or a co-worker.¹⁵

We will ask the individual to tell us about all of the work they did in the last 5 years (unless the job started and stopped in fewer than 30 calendar days). The individual must tell us the dates they worked, the duties they performed, and any tools, machinery, and equipment they used. We will need to know the amount of walking, standing, sitting, lifting, and carrying the individual did during the workday, as well as any other physical or mental demands of their work.

9. What information do we require when determining whether work is PRW that an individual can perform?

To determine whether an individual can perform PRW, we need information about the physical and mental demands of PRW, particularly as relevant to the individual's RFC. This may include detailed information about strength, manipulative ability, mental demands, and other job requirements. Other information, such as information concerning dates work was performed, tools and machines used, the extent of supervision required, and a description of tasks and responsibilities, may be needed to determine whether the work is PRW that the individual can perform. If more than one job was performed during the 5-year period, we will request separate descriptions of each job the individual performed during the relevant period.

Determination of the individual's ability to do PRW requires careful consideration of:

- the individual's statements as to which past work requirements can no longer be met and the reason(s) for their inability to meet those requirements;
- the individual's RFC;¹⁶ and
- in some cases, supplementary or corroborative information from other sources on the requirements of the work as actually performed by the individual or as generally performed in the economy.

10. What findings and rationale must our determination or decision include

¹⁵ See 20 CFR 404.1565(b) and 416.965(b).

¹⁶ 20 CFR 404.1545 and 416.945 and SSR 96-8p Policy Interpretation Ruling Titles II and XVI: Assessing Residual Functional Capacity in Initial Claims.

when we find that an individual is able to perform PRW?

A determination or decision that an individual is not disabled, based on their ability to perform at least one job or occupation that is PRW at step four of the sequential evaluation process, must contain adequate rationale and findings.

In finding that an individual has the capacity to perform PRW, the determination or decision must:

- establish the individual's RFC;
- identify the PRW the individual can do;
- consider the physical and mental demands of the PRW either as the individual actually performed the job or as the occupation is generally performed in the national economy; and
- find that the individual's RFC establishes capacity to perform the PRW either as the individual actually performed the job or as the occupation is generally performed in the national economy.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Purpose

PHMSA is publishing this notice to solicit input pertaining to the current tare weight marking requirements in the Hazardous Materials Regulations (HMR; 49 CFR parts 171-180)—specifically, § 178.35(f)(8)—regarding DOT specification 4B, 4BA, 4BW, and 4E cylinders used in liquefied compressed gas service to determine what, if any, effect they may have on the safe transportation of hazardous materials.

II. Background

On May 1, 2009, the Compressed Gas Association (CGA) petitioned (P-1540¹) PHMSA to revise § 178.35(f) to require DOT 4B, 4BA, 4BW, and 4E cylinders be marked with the tare weight or mass weight, and water capacity. Tare weight is the weight of the fully assembled cylinder, including the valve(s) and other permanently affixed appurtenances; mass weight is the weight of the fully assembled cylinder, excluding valve(s) and removable protective cap(s) or cover(s); and water capacity is the total volume of water the cylinder is capable of holding. The purpose of marking these measurements on the cylinder is to ensure that cylinders filled by weight, a method primarily used for liquefied gases like propane, are filled with the correct amount of material. The HMR requires that, for liquefied gases, the content of the cylinder be checked after filling by an "accurate scale"—see § 173.304a(c)—to avoid overfilling cylinders, which can cause cylinder rupture.

The CGA's petition requested that the markings be permitted to vary from the actual tare weight, mass weight, and water capacity of the cylinder to account for the accuracy of the stamped weight during manufacture. Specifically, the CGA's petition requested that for cylinders up to and including 25 pounds, the tare weight/mass weight marking be allowed a lower tolerance of three (3) percent and an upper tolerance of one (1) percent, while the tare weight/mass weight marking for cylinders larger than 25 pounds be allowed a lower tolerance of two (2) percent and an upper tolerance of one (1) percent. Similarly, the CGA's petition requested that water capacity tolerances for cylinders up to and including 25 pounds of -1 percent with no requirement for an upper tolerance, and for cylinders larger than 25 pounds of minus -0.5 percent with no requirement for an upper tolerance.
