

up to 180 days to examine, classify, and approve a regulated explosives-containing material for transport. What impact does waiting for PHMSA approval of your small quantities and/or dilute explosives have upon your facility, in your efforts to comply with the requirements of other regulatory agencies?

6. What threshold quantity and/or concentration of explosives, if any, presents a low risk to life, property, and the environment, and should, in your opinion, be considered for exception from regulation by PHMSA?

7. What is the technical basis for your opinion (e.g., testing, experience, data, etc.)?

8. Why, in your opinion, should a threshold quantity and/or concentration of explosives not be considered for exception from regulation by PHMSA?

Your efforts to comment on the above questions are appreciated; your responses will be used to better inform decisions in determining small quantity and/or de minimis exceptions for explosive substances and in selecting test samples for Contract #693JK322C00003.

OMB Control Number: 1506-0035.

Type of Review: Extension without change of a currently approved collection.

Description: Section 352 of the USA PATRIOT Act added subsection (h) to 31 U.S.C. 5318 of the BSA that requires the Secretary of the Treasury to require financial institutions to establish and maintain anti-money laundering ("AML") programs. Pursuant to section 352, FinCEN issued regulations requiring insurance companies and non-bank residential mortgage lenders and originators ("RMLOs") to develop and implement a written AML program. The Final Rule requires minimum standards for AML programs for banks without a Federal functional regulator to ensure that all banks, regardless of whether they are subject to Federal regulation and oversight, are required to establish and implement AML programs, and extends customer identification program requirements and beneficial ownership requirements to those banks not already subject to these requirements.
