

situations you wouldn't normally." RJ's Trucking & Logistics LLC stated, "I believe he should be exempt and the requirement should be discontinued. ELD does nothing but give brokers more power. Some use this as a way to fine you a load. If its [sic] about safety then why do some still let you get a load. There is nothing wrong with paper logs."

Of the 24 comments filed opposing the exemption, six were from trucking companies. The commenters who opposed granting the exemption emphasized placing safety first. Joint comments filed by the Truck Safety Coalition, Citizens for Reliable and Safety Highways, and Parents Against Tired Truckers stated that safety "must be the top priority, not the last to be addressed with whatever funds remain available. Safety has a cost, and it must be paid by all industry stakeholders if meaningful progress will be made in reducing truck crash deaths and injuries." John Bowlby stated, "This exemption should not be granted. ELDs make it harder for drivers to cheat. A new business tight on cash flow would be tempted to cheat to make more money." Some commenters also cited the relatively low cost of ELDs. An anonymous commenter stated, "I pay $300 a year for ELD. If you can't afford that, how are you going to pay for safety related items. 1 tire costs more than that."

V. FMCSA Safety Analysis and Decision

FMCSA evaluated GTLM's application and the public comments and denies the exemption request. GTLM failed to establish that it would likely achieve a level of safety equivalent to, or greater than, the level achieved without the exemption. ELDs help drivers more accurately track driving time to ensure compliance with HOS regulations, which are designed to help drivers maintain alertness while operating CMVs. Additionally, ELDs decrease the likelihood that the RODS could be altered after the date the records were generated, without leaving an electronic trail. For these reasons, and as discussed in the amended rulemaking proceedings that established the ELD requirements [80 FR 78292], the Agency believes the level of safety provided by the use of ELDs is likely greater than that provided by the use of paper logs as an alternative. GTLM did not propose safety countermeasures to compensate for the lower level of safety that paper logs entail. Economic difficulties, such as those that GTLM described, do not justify the granting of an exemption.

For the reasons stated, GTLM's exemption application is denied.

SUMMARY: FMCSA announces its decision to deny applications from 21 individuals who requested an exemption from the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs) prohibiting persons with a clinical diagnosis of epilepsy or any other condition that is likely to cause a loss of consciousness or any loss of ability to operate a commercial motor vehicle (CMV) from operating CMVs in interstate commerce.

B. Privacy Act

In accordance with 49 U.S.C. 31315(b)(6), DOT solicits comments from the public on the exemption request. DOT posts these comments, without edit, including any personal information the commenter provides, to www.regulations.gov. As described in the system of records notice DOT/ALL 14 (Federal Docket Management System), which can be reviewed at <https://www.transportation.gov/individuals/privacy/privacy-act-system-records-notices>, the comments are searchable by the name of the submitter.

II. Background

FMCSA received applications from 21 individuals who requested an exemption from the FMCSRs prohibiting persons with a clinical diagnosis of epilepsy or any other condition that is likely to cause a loss of consciousness or any loss of ability to operate a CMV from operating CMVs in interstate commerce.

FMCSA has evaluated the eligibility of these applicants and concluded that granting these exemptions would not provide a level of safety that would be equivalent to, or greater than, the level of safety that would be obtained by complying with § 391.41(b)(8).

III. Basis for Exemption Determination

Under 49 U.S.C. 31136(e) and 31315(b), FMCSA may grant an exemption from the FMCSRs for no longer than a 5-year period if it finds such exemption would likely achieve a level of safety that is equivalent to, or greater than, the level that would be achieved absent such exemption. The statute also allows the Agency to renew exemptions at the end of the 5-year period. FMCSA grants medical exemptions from the FMCSRs for a 2-year period to align with the maximum duration of a driver's medical certification. The Agency's decision regarding these exemption applications is based on the eligibility criteria, the terms and conditions for Federal exemptions, and an individualized assessment of each applicant's medical information provided by the applicant.

IV. Conclusion

The Agency has determined that these applicants do not satisfy the eligibility criteria or meet the terms and conditions of the Federal exemption and granting these exemptions would not provide a level of safety that would be equivalent to, or greater than, the level of safety that would be obtained by complying with § 391.41(b)(8). Therefore, the 21 applicants in this notice have been denied exemptions from the physical qualification standards in § 391.41(b)(8).

Each applicant has, prior to this notice, received a letter of final disposition regarding his/her exemption request. Those decision letters fully outlined the basis for the denial and constitute final action by the Agency. This notice summarizes the Agency's recent denials as required under 49 U.S.C. 31315(b)(4) by periodically publishing names and reasons for denial.
