

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Under the PRA (44 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.), Federal agencies must obtain approval from the OMB for each collection of information that they conduct or sponsor.

“Collection of information” is defined in 44 U.S.C. 3502(3) and 5 CFR 1320.3(c) to include agency requests or requirements that members of the public submit reports, keep records, or provide information to a third party. The OCC asks the OMB to extend its approval of the collection in this notice.

Title: Supervisory Guidance on Stress Testing for Banking Organizations with Total Consolidated Assets of More Than $10 Billion.

OMB Control No.: 1557–0312.

Type of Review: Regular.

Affected Public: Businesses or other for-profit.

Description: On May 17, 2012, the OCC, along with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve (FRB), published guidance in the Federal Register on the use of stress testing as a means to better understand the range of a banking organization’s¹ potential risk exposures.² The OCC is now seeking to renew the information collection associated with that guidance.

The guidance provides an overview of how a banking organization should structure its stress testing activities to ensure that those activities fit into the banking organization’s overall risk management. The purpose of the guidance is to outline broad principles for a satisfactory stress testing framework and describe how stress testing should be used. In addition, the guidance sets forth high-level recommendations for the development of a stress testing framework with clearly defined objectives; well-designed scenarios tailored to the organization’s business and risks; well-documented assumptions; conceptually sound methodologies to assess potential impact to the organization’s financial condition; informative management reports; recommended actions based on stress test results; and policies and procedures for the framework. The information collected informs how banking organizations use stress testing as a component of risk management and as a tool for capital and liquidity planning. The OCC reviews such materials as part of its supervisory process, which includes review of the risk-management capabilities of OCC-supervised banking organizations. While the guidance is not intended to provide detailed instructions for conducting stress testing for any particular risk or business area, it does describe several types of stress testing activities and how they may be most appropriately used by banking organizations. The guidance does not explicitly address the stress testing requirements imposed upon certain banking organizations by section 165(i) of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act.³

Estimated Frequency of Response: On occasion.

Estimated Number of Respondents: 62.

Estimated Annual Burden: 16,120 hours.

Comments: On July 23, 2024, the OCC published a 60-day notice for this information collection, 89 FR 59803. No comments were received.

Comments continue to be invited on:

(a) Whether the collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the OCC, including whether the information has practical utility;

(b) The accuracy of the OCC’s estimate of the burden of the collection of information;

(c) Ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information to be collected;

(d) Ways to minimize the burden of the collection on respondents, including through the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology; and

(e) Estimates of capital or start-up costs and costs of operation, maintenance, and purchase of services to provide information.
