

Commission Act⁹ against businesses that deceive consumers about the capabilities of their generative AI services. Businesses that exploit media hype and consumer unfamiliarity with this new technology to cheat people out of their hard-earned money should expect a knock on the door from the Commission and other law-enforcement agencies. In this case, consumers who relied on DoNotPay's wholly inadequate legal advice not only wasted their money but were also likely induced into reliance on the inadequate legal contracts and ineffective legal filings generated by DoNotPay. It does not take a vivid imagination to imagine how such reliance could have ruinous consequences. The Commission's staff deserves great credit for bringing and settling this case.

I write separately to ensure that no one confuses what we are doing today—holding generative-AI companies to the same standards for honest-business conduct that apply to every industry—with the regulation of AI qua AI. Congress has given us the power to enforce prohibitions against unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts and practices.¹⁰ We may reach some AI-related activity incidental to enforcing those prohibitions, as we do today. But Congress has not given us power to regulate AI standing alone. We should not succumb to the panicked calls for the Commission to act as the country's comprehensive AI regulator.¹¹

I write also to clarify that my vote should not be taken as support for the State Bar of California's claim that DoNotPay was engaged in the unauthorized practice of law.¹² The Commission does not enforce state occupational-licensing laws like California's unauthorized-practice-of-law prohibition.¹³ And if a company were to create a computer system capable of giving accurate legal advice and drafting effective legal documents, or honestly advertise a system that provides something less, I doubt that the aggressive enforcement of lawyers' monopoly on legal services would serve the public interest.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Title of Collection: Children’s Online Privacy Protection Rule, 16 CFR part 312.

OMB Control Number: 3084–0117.

Type of Review: Extension of currently approved collection.

Affected Public: Private Sector: Businesses and other for-profit entities.

Estimated Annual Burden Hours: 17,700.

Estimated Annual Labor Costs: $8,687,169.

Estimated Annual Non-Labor Costs: $0.

Abstract: The COPPA Rule, 16 CFR part 312, requires commercial websites and online services to provide notice and obtain parental consent before collecting, using, or disclosing personal information from children under age thirteen, with limited exceptions. The COPPA Rule contains certain statutorily required notice, consent, and other requirements that apply to operators of any commercial website or online service directed to children that collect personal information, and operators of any commercial website or online service with actual knowledge that they are collecting personal information from children. The Rule also applies to operators that have actual knowledge that they are collecting personal information directly from users of another website or online service that is directed to children. Covered operators must, among other things: (1) provide online notice and direct notice to parents of how they collect, use, and disclose children’s personal information; (2) obtain the prior consent of the child’s parent in order to engage in such collection, use, and disclosure; (3) provide reasonable means for the parent to obtain access to the information and to direct its deletion; and (4) establish procedures that protect the confidentiality, security, and integrity of personal information collected from children.

Burden Statement

A. Annual Hours Burden: 17,600 hours.

I. New Entrant Operators’ Disclosure Burden

Based on public comments received by the Commission during its 2013 COPPA Rule amendments rulemaking,¹ FTC staff estimates that the Rule affects approximately 280 new operators per year.² FTC staff maintains its longstanding estimate that new operators of websites and online services will require, on average, approximately 60 hours to draft a privacy policy and design mechanisms to provide the required online privacy notice and, where applicable, the direct notice to parents.³ This yields an estimated annual hours burden of 16,800 hours (280 respondents × 60 hours).

II. Safe Harbor Applicant Reporting Requirements

Operators can comply with the COPPA Rule by meeting the terms of Commission approved self-regulatory program guidelines.⁴ While the submission of industry self-regulatory guidelines to the agency is voluntary, the COPPA Rule sets out the criteria for approval of guidelines and the materials that must be submitted as part of an application for approval of such self-regulatory guidelines. Based on industry input, FTC staff estimates that it would require, on average, 265 hours per new safe harbor program applicant to prepare and submit its safe harbor proposal in accordance with § 312.11(c) of the Rule, 16 CFR 312.11(c).⁵ Given that several safe harbor programs are already available to operators of websites and online services, FTC staff anticipates that no more than one additional safe harbor applicant is likely to submit a request within the next three years of PRA clearance. Thus, FTC staff estimates that annualized burden attributable to this requirement would be approximately 88 hours per year (265 hours ÷ 3 years), which is rounded to 100 hours.

III. Annual Audit and Report for Safe Harbor Programs

The COPPA Rule requires safe harbor programs to audit their members at least annually and submit annual reports to the Commission on the aggregate results of these member audits. The burden for conducting member audits and preparing these reports likely varies by safe harbor program depending on the number of members. FTC staff estimates that conducting audits and preparing reports will require approximately 100 hours per program per year. Aggregated for one new safe harbor (100 hours) and six existing safe harbor (600 hours) programs, this amounts to an estimated cumulative reporting burden of 700 hours per year (7 respondents × 100 hours).

IV. Safe Harbor Program Recordkeeping Requirements

FTC staff understands that most of the records listed in the COPPA Rule's safe harbor recordkeeping provisions consist of documentation that covered entities retain in the ordinary course of business

⁴ See 16 CFR 312.11(c). Approved self-regulatory guidelines can be found on the FTC's website at http://www.ftc.gov/privacy/privacyinitiatives/childrens_shp.html.

⁵ See 83 FR 49557 (Oct. 2, 2018). FTC staff believes that most of the records submitted with a safe harbor request would be those that these entities have kept in the ordinary course of business. Under 5 CFR 1320.3(b)(2), OMB excludes from the definition of PRA burden the time and financial resources needed to comply with agency-imposed recordkeeping, disclosure, or reporting requirements that customarily would be undertaken independently in the normal course of business.

irrespective of the COPPA Rule. As noted above, OMB excludes from the definition of PRA burden, among other things, recordkeeping requirements that customarily would be undertaken independently in the normal course of business. In FTC staff's view, any incremental burden, such as that for maintaining the results of independent assessments under § 312.11(d), would be marginal.

B. Estimated Annual Labor Costs: $8,687,169.

I. New Entrant Operators' Disclosure Burden

Consistent with its past estimates and based on its 2013 rulemaking record, FTC staff assumes that the time spent on compliance for new operators covered by the COPPA Rule would be apportioned five to one between legal (outside counsel lawyers or similar professionals) and technical (e.g., computer programmers, software developers, and information security analysts) personnel. FTC staff therefore estimates that outside counsel costs will account for 14,000 of the estimated 16,800 hours required as estimated in Section A.I above. FTC staff anticipates that the workload among law firm partners and associates for assisting with COPPA compliance would be distributed among attorneys at varying levels of seniority. Assuming two-thirds of such work is done by junior associates at a rate of approximately $510 per hour, and one-third by senior partners at approximately $798 per hour, the weighted average of outside counsel costs would be approximately $606 per hour.⁶ FTC staff anticipates that computer programmers responsible for posting privacy policies and implementing direct notices and parental consent mechanisms would account for the remaining 2,800 hours. FTC staff estimates an hourly wage of $56.03 for technical personnel, based on Bureau of Labor Statistics ("BLS") data.⁷ Accordingly, associated annual labor costs would be $8,640,884 [(14,000 hours × $606/hour) + (2,800 hours × $56.03/hour)] for the estimated 280 new operators.

II. Safe Harbor Applicant Reporting Requirements

Previously, industry sources have advised that all of the labor to comply with new safe harbor applicant requirements would be attributable to the efforts of in-house lawyers.⁸ To determine in-house legal costs, FTC staff applied an approximate average between the BLS reported mean hourly wage for lawyers ($84.84),⁹ and estimated in-house hourly attorney rates ($300) that are likely to reflect the costs associated with some safe harbor applicant costs. This yields an approximate hourly rate of $193. Applying this hourly labor cost estimate to the hours burden associated with approval for a new safe harbor application yields an estimated annual labor cost burden of $19,300 (100 hours × $193).

III. Annual Audit and Report for Safe Harbor Programs

FTC staff assumes that compliance officers, at a mean hourly wage of $38.55, will prepare annual reports.¹⁰ Applying this hourly labor cost estimate to the hours burden associated with preparing annual audit reports yields an estimated annual labor cost burden of $26,985 (700 hours × $38.55).

IV. Safe Harbor Program Recordkeeping Requirements

For the reasons stated in Section A.IV above, FTC staff anticipates that the labor costs associated with safe harbor program recordkeeping are de minimis.

C. Estimated Annual Non-Labor Costs: $0.

FTC staff understands that covered operators already have in place the computer equipment and software necessary to comply with the Rule's ⁷ The estimated mean hourly wages for technical personnel ($56.03) is based on an average of the mean hourly wage for computer programmers, software developers, information security analysts, and web developers as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. See Bureau of Labor Statistics, Occupational Employment and Wages—May 2023, Table 1 (May 2023), available at <https://www.bls.gov/news.release/ocwage.t01.htm> (National employment and wage data from the Occupational Employment Statistics survey by occupation) [hereinafter "BLS Table 1"].

notice requirements. Accordingly, the predominant costs incurred by operators are the aforementioned labor costs. Similarly, FTC staff anticipates that covered entities already have in place the means to retain and store the records that must be kept under the Rule's safe harbor recordkeeping provisions, because they are likely to retain such records independent of the Rule. Accordingly, FTC staff estimates that the capital and non-labor costs associated with Rule compliance are de minimis.

BILLING CODE 6750-01-P

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

Privacy Act of 1974; System of Records

AGENCY: Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

ACTION: Notice of modified systems of records.

SUMMARY: The FTC is making technical revisions to several of the notices that it has published under the Privacy Act of 1974 to describe its systems of records. This action is intended to make these notices clearer, more accurate, and up-to-date.

DATES: These modified systems will be applicable on September 30, 2024.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: G. Richard Gold, Attorney, Office of the General Counsel, FTC, 600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20580, (202) 326-3355 or rgold@ftc.gov.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: To inform the public, the FTC publishes in the Federal Register and posts on its website a "system of records notice" (SORN) for each system of records that the FTC currently maintains within the meaning of the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, 5 U.S.C. 552a ("Privacy Act" or "Act"). See <https://www.ftc.gov/about-ftc/foia/foia-reading-rooms/privacy-act-systems>. The Privacy Act protects records about individuals in systems of records collected and maintained by Federal agencies. (A system is not a "system of records" under the Act unless the agency maintains and retrieves records in the system by the relevant individual's name or other personally assigned identifier.) Each Federal agency, including the FTC, must publish a SORN that describes the records maintained in each of its Privacy Act systems, including the categories of individuals that the records in the system are about where and how the agency maintains these records, and how individuals can find out whether an agency system contains any records about them or request access to their records, if any. The FTC, for example, maintains 39 systems of records under the Act. Some of these systems contain records about the FTC's own employees, such as personnel and payroll files. Other FTC systems contain records about members of the public, such as public comments, consumer complaints, or phone numbers submitted to the FTC's Do Not Call Registry.

The FTC's SORNs discussed in this notice apply only to the FTC's own Privacy Act record systems. They do not cover Privacy Act records that other Federal agencies may collect and maintain in their own systems. Likewise, the FTC's SORNs and the Privacy Act of 1974 do not cover personal records that private businesses or other non-FTC entities may collect, which may be covered by other privacy laws.
