

Comments of Canada (Oct. 15, 2024) at 2. The LCA, in a public submission, provided an email attaching a chain of recent communications with Transport Canada. That email chain confirms that three of the six U.S. vessels had been granted exemptions and that two of the remaining vessels had been determined not to need an exemption. See LCA Submission (Oct. 28, 2024) at 2–6. The LCA's late October submission indicated that the sixth vessel had not yet received a final determination, but the Commission understands that that vessel received an exemption in early November 2024. However, the exemptions are only temporary in nature, so the vessels will be in a similar precarious operating position when the exemptions expire.

The Commission notes that the exemption process, due both to the lateness of its availability and the seeming onerousness of its process, may have imposed negative effects on certain U.S. carriers. Accordingly, there are ongoing concerns with respect to specific elements of the above exemption determinations. Those issues will be pursued in the agency's longer-term chapter 421 investigation, which remains open. The Commission will continue to investigate these concerns and strongly encourages affected entities or anyone with relevant information to participate in the ongoing chapter 421 proceeding.

III. Closure of Investigation

For the above reasons, the Commission has closed its Investigation into Conditions Affecting United States Carriers in Connection with Canadian Ballast Water Regulation in the United States/Canada Great Lakes Trade, FMC–2024–0008, 89 FR 44979 (opened May 22, 2024).

By the Commission.

Dated: December 5, 2024.

David Eng,
Secretary.
